Australian Military Maneuvers—Duke of Mechlenburg—Schwerin Dying—The Pope's Lottery Tickets—General Mention.

London, Aug. 15.—A Vienna dispatch says that people are wondering there what Pope Leo will do with the lottery tickets bequeathed to him by the late Ritter Von Leonhard, who was chancellor of the papal legation in Vienna.

The will of the late chancellor left to the pope about 100,000 francs in money, a quantity of stocks and bonds, and half of any eventual gain from the lottery tickets held by the deceased.

As shown by this instance, dealing in lotteries is not uncommon in Vienna among people of high station, ecclesiastical and secular, but it is probably the first time that the pope has been made a lottery beneficiary.

A dispatch from Copenhagen says that the Prince of Naples arrived at Christiania, Norway, and will spend some days inspecting the summer beauty of Norway, after which he will proceed to Sweden and be received by King Oscar.

The prince will be invited to review the Swedish army, and may take a journey to the mines of Dale Carlia. He has expressed a strong desire to see the birthplace and any relics of Gustavus Adolphus, whom he has declared to be his type of a military commander.

The admiralty has ordered the Camperdown, Anson, Rodney, Howe and Nile, with a dozen attendant vessels, to do honor to the French visiting fleet, which will consist of the Marengo, the Requin, the Marceau, the Furieux and two more. M. Waddington, the French embassador, will come to Portsmouth to be present at the reception.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that the high military authorities of Russia are not favorably impressed by Russian official reports of the condition of the French army. The artillery is well spoken of but the infantry is said not to show the endurance that is required for a prolonged campaign.

St. Petersburg advices state that the government proposes to establish a system of elevators at the principal ports of export and lines of railway that will enable the small farmer, as well as the extensive land owner, to bring wheat, whatever the quantity, to the elevator to be classified and graded, receiving for whatever quantity they bring a warrant for so much grain of a certain grade, these warrants to be payable at all government banks. It is expected thus to abolish the middlemen.

The Australian military manoeuvres, in the early part of September, will be attended by the Austrian and German kaisers, and the kings of Saxony and Roumania. The manoeuvres will begin on August 29th, and it is said that the new Mosiem battalions, raised in Bosnia for the Austrian service, will take some part.

The Czechs continue to insult Germans at Prague, and on Wednesday last a German gentleman from Dantzic was knocked down and kicked by a party of hilarious Bohemians who were singing anti-German songs. He succeeded in rising, and drew a pistol, with which he shot one of the ruffians in the arm, whereupon they dispersed. Knowing that Germans were frequently insulted, this one had come armed and prepared.

The Greek crown princess Sophia, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and sister of the German kaiser, having recently been converted to the Greek faith, it was asserted by some that she would have to be baptized over again. The Greek synod, however, has decided that the baptism of the princess in infancy as a member of the English church is sufficient, and to be recognized as valid by the Greek church.

The health of the Grand Duke Mecklenburg-Schwerin continues to grow worse, and a fatal result is feared.

The New Jersey Jews.

Hightstown, N. J., Aug. 15.—The story published yesterday that the Russian Hebrews sent to this place from New York city by the Baron Hirsch fund trustees were in a bad plight and facing starvation is exaggerated.

They were dissatisfied at first when they learned what work they were expected to do, but they now seem to think better of it. Leading citizens of the place say they are willing to give them relief should they be absolutely in need. The superintendent of the large factory in town has offered to give them steady employment and they will probably all be at work in a short time.

Decline of British Trade.

London, Aug. 15.—The Pall Mall Gazette says each week this half-year has shown less receipts from the freight traffic in England and Scotland than the corresponding period last year. This is a further proof of the decline in British trade. The total decrease for the past six weeks is 56,000 pounds.

CANADIAN CORRUPTION.

Sensational Testimony Taken at Ottawa.

Mercier as Deep in the Steal as the Late Lamented Public Works Minister.

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Some sensational testimony was given last night before the senate committee investigating the Baie Des Chaleurs subsidy scandal.

Contractor Armstrong in reciting the plot said the Quebec government was induced to vote a subsidy equal to $280,000, and to get this Armstrong bargained to give Ernest Paucaud, Mercier's financial manager, $100,000.

The whole matter looks serious for Mercier and Lieut-Gov. Angers will probably insist on an immediate investigation.

FOUND A NEW ROAD.

A Discovery of Much Value to Peru.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The important information has been received by the bureau of American republics that "a short cut" across the continent of South America has recently been discovered by the celebrated explorer, Carlos Fry.

The route as described by him in a letter to the prefect of the department of Junin in Peru, lies from Chanchamayo to a good part of the Pichis, one of the navigable tributaries of the Upper Amazon, and he declares that it will be possible by this route to reduce the journey from Lima to the Eastern river route from thirty days to four or five. With a few score laborers he estimates that the road can be completed in six months at a cost less than $4,000. The completion of this road would work a revolution in the trade and industry of the far interior of the republic of Peru, which, although it comprises some of the richest regions in the world, is now comparatively valueless, owing to the lack of practicable means of transport.

Treasury Rulings.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The treasury department has decided that dutiable foreign merchandise exported from this country and returned is liable to the same rate of duty as on its original importation.

Acting Secretary Nettleton has decided that on the exportation of carpets manufactured wholly or in part from imported materials a drawback may be allowed equal to the amount of duties paid on the imported materials used in the manufacture less than 1 per cent. of such amount.

Solving a Strange Case.

Denver, Col., Aug. 15.—The circumstances surrounding the death of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Bonnick begin to assume a mysterious appearance as investigation proceeds and it is now believed by many that Mrs. Bonnick poisoned her husband and then took the fatal drug herself. It has been shown at the inquest that the meddling of relatives had much to do with the double suicide or murder and suicide as the case may be.

Sold Under the Tenant Act.

Dublin, Aug. 15.—The estate of Lord Lurgan, situated in counties Armagh and Down, has been sold under the provisions of the land purchase act. The 806 tenants agree to pay £235,000 for the property.

HOLGATE'S SCHOOL FIGHT.

It Has Not Got Out of the Court House Yet.

The Selection of a Site Has Divided the Town Into Two Lively Factions.

Holgate, O., Aug. 15.—(Special)—A question that has furnished a theme for more street-corner gossip—often terminating in hot words—and a basis for more earnest reflection than any other subject brought before the people of Holgate for some time, is the new school-house site issue.

Ever since the old school houses were destroyed by fire it has been a question among the citizens of this town, what are the most suitable grounds for the new school building.

Some six months since the question of bonding the town to the amount of $10,000 for the erection of a school building was submitted to the people and defeated. Those voting "Bonds Issued—No" saying the location should be decided first by the board of education.

The board disagreed with them on this point and issued notices for a similar election, which resulted in a good majority for bonding the town for the above sum.

The school board, after much consideration, regarded the "old site" an improper one for the new structure—it being considerably larger than the old ones—and made negotiations with Defiance parties for a square just south of the B. & O. railroad and began building.

Then the battle commenced. The adherents to old site and those opposed being the combatants.

It was observable that some of our heavy-weight citizens were prominent in the ranks. The opponents to the site chosen by the board—as was looked for—enjoined the board, thus stopping the work of construction.

It was expected that Judge Hardy would render his decision in the matter last Wednesday but he deferred it until to-day, saying to the opponents of the "new site," that he would grant them the privilege of making an appeal inside of ten days, if he should dissolve the injunction.

The opinion of our people on this important issue is divided. Some charge the members of the board with having pecuniary interests in view in locating the school house south of the B. & O., but this is lost sight of when it is remembered four of them live on the north side.

The school board's lawyers and other lights of the legal fraternity seem to be in sympathy with the board and say the law is decidedly in its favor giving it the right to locate the building. From the present outlook Holgate is not likely to have a school house before next year.

The structure when completed will be a credit to the city and in a position to be seen by transients. It's dimensions will be 90x50 feet, containing eight commodious rooms and heated by the Smead system. It will front north and have three large arched entrances. Over the front entrance will be "Holgate School House" in raised letters.

Had a Close Call.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 15.—David Jacobs Mrs. Mary Johnson, who were sentenced to be hanged at Chesterfield yesterday for the murder of Wm. Johnson, the woman's husband, have been reprieved by the governor until Friday, September 4. The reprieve reached the sheriff after he had placed the prisoners on the scaffold, adjusted the ropes around their necks and was ready to spring the fatal trap.

Sugar Beets are Backward.

London, Aug. 15.—The European sugar beet crop is backward on account of wet and cold weather, and even with fine weather in September it is doubtful if the increased acreage will yield an increased production. Present tests are on a level with those of 1886, when the final yield was 20 per cent. below that of 1890.

Will Reorganize.

Baltimore, Aug. 15.—The Wenstrom Dynamo and Motor company has stopped its operations temporarily on account of some internal troubles among the stockholders until a reorganization can be effected. The closing of the works throws 70 men out of employment.

France Wants Our Wheat.

Paris, Aug. 15.—The Bulletin Des Halles publishes the result of statistics it has gathered of the French wheat crop. The replies of correspondents indicate a total crop of not over 85,000,000 hectolitres. This would make it necessary to import 82,500,000 bushels of wheat to meet the normal demand of the country.

Sent Them Back.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Immigrant Inspector Thorp informs the treasury department that he has sent from Pembina, N. D., to Canada, three contract laborers who were convicted of having come into the United States under contract.

Can Bring Home His Old Clothes.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The treasury department has directed that the personal effects of Alexander Clark, late United States minister to Monrovia, Africa, be admitted free of duty and delivered to the administrator of his estate.

To Accept the Bennington.

Washington, August 15.—The United States steamer Bennington, now at New York, will receive its last inspection in a few days, preparatory to its final acceptance by the navy department.

DOWN WITH HIGH TAXES!

Is the Cry of the Voters Throughout the State.

Northwestern Ohio Promises to Do Nobly.

The People's Party and Its Prospects—What Democrats are Doing in Defiance County.

Defiance, Ohio, August 15.—(Special)—There is no trouble with the democracy of Defiance county. It is unquestioned and of that unyielding and stable quality, which will stand the brunt in the hottest conflicts.

The men who form the democratic party in this county, believe in its principles and purposes as firmly as they believe in their church tenets, and are generally, if not always united when it comes to giving battle to the enemy.

Hence it is while her sister counties, Van Wert, Paulding and Williams have been jumping about year after year, first on one side of the fence, then on the other, it has never required any effort to ascertain where old Defiance was located.

Like little Henry and staunch Putnam it has always been aligned against the republican party and in favor of the principles of true democracy without reserve.

To the credit of the counties above named let it be said that of late years, they have been gradually growing more democratic until now they may be counted as reliably so.

Although it is a little too early to prognosticate, it is safe to assert that Defiance county will roll up a majority of more than 1,200 for Campbell and lower taxes.

There is no democrat in the city of Defiance who is of the opinion that the election of McKinley will enhance their interests. They are too well informed for that.

The People's party is already in the field in Defiance county with a full ticket and proposes to make a fight for the county offices. The republicans have not made their nominations yet and it is an open secret that the People's party ticket will be endorsed by them in its entirety.

The fact of the matter is that the new party was organized in this county for the purpose of dividing the democratic strength. That is no secret, either, but it is boasted of by republicans on the street.

Every nominee on the ticket of the new party is a democrat but one. Their nominee for representative is John D. Abele, a cigarmaker of this city, a man who has no practical knowledge of politics and was induced to accept the nomination under the delusion that he would be elected.

There is one mighty queer thing about this people's party movement, and that is you cannot find a genuine farmer who will admit that he is identified with it.

In Erie, Sandusky, Ottawa, Wood and Defiance counties, or so far as the writer has personally observed, the leaders of the movement appear in every instance to be men who are not so much practical farmers as they are practical malcontents.

This will probably be found to be true all over the state.

Farmers of Defiance county are just now engaged in marketing the largest crops they have raised for years, and thanks to an unusually brisk foreign demand are getting good prices for their product.

Were it not for the outrageous tariff to which they have been subjected by years of republican legislation, they would have nothing to complain of.

They know, as does every intelligent man, that the enemy they have to fight is the tax imposer, and the party which by its infamous laws fosters monopolies and trusts which hang about their necks like the old man of the sea hung to Sinbad the sailor.

Their votes will be deposited in such a manner as will most certainly afford their relief from this excessive taxation for the candidate of the democratic party which has never failed to be the party of the people.

The strength of the new party in Defiance county lies mostly in the townships of Washington, Milford, Hicksville, Delaware and Mark, and although it is an uncertain quantity, the vote is estimated as small by the best posted politicians in Defiance.

The interest here is centered at present in the fight going on for the democratic nomination for judge in this subdivision, which is the second of the Third judicial district.

There have been four candidates for the nomination. Judge Sutphen, the present incumbent; Tom Holland, of Paulding; B. F. Enos, also of Defiance, and Tom Emery, of Bryan.

Within the past few days, however, Mr. Emery has concluded not to push his claims, and the fight has settled down to the three candidates.

Each is a good democrat and an able lawyer, so that it will not make much difference in these respects who receives the nomination. The nomination will in any case be equivalent to an election.

In the west end of Defiance county, in the vicinity of Hicksville, democrats are all in line, and will hustle for the entire state and county tickets. Mr. Frank L. Farlow, a prominent attorney who resides at Hicksville, is confident that democratic gains will be made there.

"Enthusiasm for the people's party ticket," said Mr. Farlow last night, "has perceptibly waned since its convention was held. Many of them are men who have always wanted office and affiliated with the new party in the hopes of getting one. Of course many were disappointed and now declare they will not vote the ticket."

Among other things the convention did was to elect a lady, Mrs. Farnsworth, as delegate to the Springfield convention. When this was done one old German friend of mine said to me:

"Vell, I see. Dey vant to make a prohibition business out of dis. I quit dem."

"What do the farmers up there think of the tariff question?"

"People are becoming more enlightened on this subject every day, and I never saw or knew farmers to take such an interest in the tariff question before.

"Probably it is because the issue will be made directly this fall. I am certain that dozens of republicans in Defiance county will vote against McKinley, but I do not know of one democrat who will vote against Gov. Campbell.

"The sentiment among democrats is a common one that the high protective tariff champion, and the man who is directly responsible for the low price of wool should be beaten, and in my opinion he will be."

Democrats all over the county are well satisfied with the county ticket as made some weeks ago and will present a solid front to the enemy when the campaign opens.

There are no dissensions of any sort and there will be no doubt about the rolling up of the usual big majority of from 1,200 to 1,500 for the democratic ticket.

Hon. W. D. Hill is at present in Montana, but will return in time to stump the state for Campbell. He will, it is said, take an active part in the state campaign.

Silver Purchase.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The treasury department to-day purchased 519,000 ounces of silver at from .995 to .9962 cents per ounce. The offers were 1,865,000 ounces.

AN INTERESTING CASE

Is Brought Before Revenue Collector Waldorf—Pays Under Protest.

This morning Fred Beverson, a saloon and restaurant keeper of North Baltimore, accompanied by Attorney Merrill, of this city, appeared before Collector Waldorf relative to payment of certain internal revenue taxes.

The case was mentioned in the BEE a few days ago. Beverson is charged with purchasing oleomargerine from Armour & Co. and selling the same to neighbors in original packages, thereby becoming a wholesale dealer. The penalty and taxes amount to $300.

He pleads in defense that he did not know it was oleomargerine and that he made no sale. He has agreed to pay the taxes under protest, and will probably bring suit to recover the amount against Mr. Waldorf, as agent of the government.

After Cuban Trade.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 15.—At a meeting of the board of trade yesterday afternoon a resolution was unanimously adopted calling the immediate attention of the Dominion government to the advantageous treaty concluded between the United States and Spain regarding imports into the island of Cuba, and praying they will make a prompt representation to the imperial government and invite their good offices in placing Canadian trade with Cuba on a satisfactory basis so that Canada's products may be admitted on as favorable terms as similar products from the United States.

HELD UP THE BANK,

But it Was of the You Win, I Lose Kind.

Gambler Wagner Delivers Under Fire.

A Man Who Had Lost His Pile Gets It Back at the Point of a Revolver.

Dayton, O., Aug. 15.—A bold and desperate play was enacted at the "Number 10" gambling rooms yesterday, in which E.E. Poling, a former livery keeper and an underrate gambler, demanded at the point of a revolver and enforced the contribution of $169 in money.

The affair was of the Jesse James order, "your money or your life," and was similar in thrilling incidents to the tragic performances at the Columbus Grove Exchange bank, except that it was bloodless.

After breaking up in the livery business Poling removed to Chattanooga, where he was recently burned out. A few days ago he and his family returned to Dayton, since which time he has been around gambling rooms meeting with successes until Thursday night, when he lost his last dollar.

Then he borrowed 25 cents to get his supper. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning he put in an appearance at the "No. 10" saloon and gambling house, owned by S. Wagner & Son, and demanded $20 of Mr. Wagner as compensation for losses he had sustained at the house.

Wagner denied any indebtedness, but as Poling was known as a kicker he gave Poling the money and took a receipt in full, and then told Poling not to again show himself in the house.

The money that Poling had been playing with was part of the insurance money he had received on account of the loss of his property at Chattanooga. After leaving "No. 10" he went to a neighboring house and lost $10 of the $20 given him by Wagner. He then purchased from a pawn shop a Smith & Wesson revolver and returned to "No. 10."

Wagner, senior, and two assistants were sitting at a faro table in the gambling room on the third floor of the building, and the whistles and bells were sounding the noon hour as Poling, pale with excitement and nervous from drink, bounded up the stairway.

Approaching Wagner, who sat behind a table, he drew and cocked his revolver and said: "I am desperate. My wife and children are starving. I have lost $196 at this bank. I want that money or I will blow out your brains, and then kill myself. I will give you a second to decide."

Wagner, although a veteran gamester and a courageous man, paled at the demand, and his associates sat as if paralyzed. Wagner, in his experience, had met with similar scenes. There was no discounting the intent of the desperado who stood before him. The tone, the look, every quiver of muscle in the man bespoke his determination.

"Be quick," hoarsely demanded Poling, "or I will pull." Wagner mechanically obeyed and quickly counted out $196. Poling then retreated down the stairway, covering the group with his pistol. Poling then passed through the crowd in the bar-room below, and was quickly lost in the street throng.

A moment later the police were notified and a dozen officers were quickly at the scene, but in the meantime the bird had flown. If Poling is caught it is not likely that he will be prosecuted by the gamblers, at least.

News of the affair quickly spread and caused intense excitement throughout the city by reason of the various reports. To-night all gambling houses have suspended until the excitement dies away.

TOLEDO'S HOSPITALITY

Known Everywhere—Talk With Secretary Hiett.

Mr E. R. Hiett returned from Cincinnati this morning where he had been attending a meeting of the Ohio Building Association League. He spoke in the highest terms of the treatment the visitors received at the hands of the committees and citizens of Cincinnati.

"It is flattering the reputation Toledo has as a convenient town," said Mr. Hiett to a Bee this morning. "Before going to Cincinnati I had promised Cleveland not to make any attempt to secure the next meeting for Toledo. Otherwise, if we had simply extended an invitation that would have settled the matter. Cleveland wouldn't have been in it, to use the current expression of the times. I could hear Toledo on every side, and everybody was anxious to come to Toledo. They had heard of the manner in which Toledo entertains her visitors, and were anxious to become our guests."

STEEL CEILINGS

Are the Rage Just Now—Prospects of Manufacture in Toledo.

The demand for the new steel ceiling material has set Toledo enterprise astir, and no doubt before snow flies this item of building material will be manufactured in Toledo.

The cornice firm of Creswell & Co. have been planning on this departure for some time. They expect in the near future to build an annex to their plant on the corner of St. Clair and Washington streets, and equip it with all machinery necessary to the manufacture of ceiling steel. It will give employment to a good force of hands, and adds another valuable enterprise to Toledo's many interests.

THE O. Y. C.

Meets at the Island Last Evening and Has a Good Time.

A largely attended meeting of the Ohio Yacht Club was held last evening at the club house at Presque Isle. The following gentlemen were admitted to membership: C. E. Armstrong, Geo. C. Dunham, Geo. M. Baker, Orville Brown, of Toledo, and Capt. D. H. Mallery, of Elyria.

The committee on reception to the visiting members reported and was discharged with profuse thanks for the efficient manner in which they performed their duties.

An invitation was received from the Hull Yacht club, of Boston, to attend its formal opening, August 19. G. G. Keep presented the club with a large quantity of stationery materials and Treasurer J. M. Kelsey gave a handsome water color painting of the city club house, which will be hung at the island.

An impromptu musical program was rendered after the meeting and a excellent lunch was served. The September meeting will be held at the island, when it is hoped that the entertainment committee will show up with an elaborate program.

'TIS REPRESENTATIVE WINN

Defiance Democrats in Session To-Day.

The First Time in Its History the County Has a Representative All to Itself.

Defiance, O., Aug. 15.—(Special)—The first convention ever held for the nomination of a candidate for representative to the legislature from Defiance county convened here to-day.

Heretofore Defiance and Paulding counties have had a joint representative, but under the new apportionment each county is entitled to a separate representative.

The convention was very enthusiastic, largely attended, and much interest in the proceedings was manifested.

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock by Mr. J. K. Myers, the chairman of the county central committee. He announced that the committee had selected Baldwin Herzer for temporary chairman, and R. D. Webster for temporary secretary.

Mr. Herzer, on taking the chair, briefly thanked the convention for selecting him as presiding officer over the first representative convention held by the democrats of Defiance county.

Committees were appointed by the chair as follows:

On Permanent Organization—J. W. Childs, William Brice and J. K. Myers.

Resolutions—Adam Mussell, Wm. Beally and Gotlieb Goller.

Credentials—Frank Clemmer, Thos B. Randles and Peter Weigerding.

The advisability of appointing a "representative" committee was discussed and agreed to, the following committee being appointed: John K. Myers, John Bittner and J. M. Preisendorfer.

The convention recessed to 1 o'clock.

Afternoon session.

The convention was called to order after recess at promptly 1:30 o'clock. The attendance was much larger than at the morning session. The commodious court room being taxed to its limit.

The committee on rules and apportionment and permanent organization reported that the ordinary rules govern, and that the temporary organization be made permanent.

The committee on resolutions reported as follows:

Resolved, That we, the democracy, of Defiance county, in convention assembled heartily endorse the platform adopted by the democratic state convention held at Cleveland.

The report of the committee on credentials was adopted without dissent. The presentation of candidates was then called for.

J. K. Myers announced the nam of John W. Winn.

The name of John F. Dowe was announced by S. A. Maxwell.

No other names being announced a ballot was ordered, which resulted as follows: Winn, 58; Dowe, 31.

Winn was declared the nominee of the convention.

Mr. Winn, amid loud cheering, was introduced to the convention as the next representative from Defiance county. The nominee thanked the convention for the honor of the nomination, and that the only thing he was sorry for was that there had been too hard a struggle for the place.

Mr. Dowe, he asserted, was one of the best men who ever asked for an office in Defiance county or any other county, and stated that had he known his opponent was a candidate for the office he would not have come out for it. He made a brief allusion to the issues of the campaign, and said the democratic party ought to win in the coming contest for its principles were right.

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—The fourth annual session of the High Court of Ohio, Independent Order of Foresters, was held in Memorial hall yesterday and late into last night.

There were over fifty delegates in attendance. Almost the entire day session was devoted to a revision of the constitution and by-laws, a number of unimportant changes being made.

In the evening, after a contest lasting for three hours, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: High chief ranger, George A. Harper, of Cleveland; vice high chief ranger, K. V. Haymaker, of Defiance; high secretary, C. L. Dennis, of Cleveland; high treasurer, William Sohl, of Cleveland; high councillor, D. J. Zinner, of Cleveland; high physician, Dr. Luther Lee Johnson, of Garrettsville; high auditors, Edward Cummins and George Koestle, of Cleveland.

The following delegates to the Supreme Court of the order for the United States and Canada, which will meet at Detroit on September 1, were chosen: K. V. Haymaker, of Defiance, and Dr. E. P. Hawley, James R. Knight, and J. W. Blake.

The high chief ranger appointed the following officers: Journal clerk, J. W. Blake, of Cleveland; high chaplain, J. J. Jack, of Cleveland; high senior woodward, J. A. Beitler, of Toledo; high junior woodward, A. M. Stanton, of Akron; high senior beadle, George Myers, of Cleveland; high junior beadle, K. P. Cleveland, of Lima; high marshal, S. A. Logan, of Cleveland; high conductor, C. T. Warren, of Cleveland; high messenger, A. T. Heath, of Ashtabula Harbor.

The new officers were installed at midnight hour with impressive ceremonies.

The high court has met in Cleveland four times, and this city again put in a bid for the honor. It was defeated, however, and the next session will be held in Garrettsville. The time will be announced by the high standing committee of the order.

They were dug out in a few minutes by willing hands, but Sam Perkins was found to be dead and Spencer Ewell fatally injured. Three others were injured, but not fatally. All were negroes.

HAD TO CALL ON JOHN.

Secretary Foster's Visit to Mansfield

Was to Consult With Senator Sherman.

The Old Leader Tells His Successor Where He Made a Mistake in Dealing With the Four and a Half's.

Mansfield, O., Aug. 15.—Secretary Foster and Senator Sherman had a very important conference Thursday night.

It continued for five hours, during which the entire financial situation was reviewed, and the question of continuing the 4½ per cent. bonds was naturally the central figure of the discussion.

It was soon demonstrated that the ex-secretary did not share the views of Mr. Foster upon the subject. He thought the secretary should pay the 4½ per cents. and he undertook to show how easy it was for him to do it without making trouble in the financial world.

The ex-secretary's position was that the money already in the treasury that could be spared from the sinking fund, and that might accrue in the meantime, would be sufficient to pay off the bonds when due.

He explained to the new secretary that the month of July, the worst in the year, had been passed in safety, and that now gold would return to us as our exports began and that the movement of the specie crops, and the payment of new revenues, would make things easy, saying that the bonds could be retired without difficulty or danger.

The question of what effect the retirement of the securities that have been held by the national banks, as a deposit for circulation would have on the banking system, was naturally one of the features of the discussion.

Senator Sherman did not think it would have any, except eventually to somewhat change its character. Mr. Sherman took the ground that the banks would very soon adjust themselves to the new conditions when the government would furnish the currency to them direct.

How far Secretary Foster accepted or will accept Senator Sherman's views upon the subject, remains to be seen.

German Corn Duties.

Berlin, Aug. 15—The North German Gazette declares that the government resolutely adheres to its decision not to reduce the corn duties, but does not intend to repeat its declaration on the subject.

The policy of the government is now held responsible for the proceedings of the bears in the corn market. It is alleged that the ruthless speculations for a rise could not have proceeded with such absolute security but for Chancellor Von Caprivi's positive statement in the Uterhaus that there was no reason to fear that the exportation of Russian rye would fail.

California's Exhibit.

San Francisco, Aug. 15—The superior court, in the suit of the comptroller to test the constitutionality of the law appropriating $300,000 for California's exhibit at the world's fair, yesterday ordered that the case be submitted on brief. The attorney general believes the law is constitutional.

FEAR ANOTHER BLOODY TIME

The Calm in Hayti Which Precedes the Storm.

The Ministry Has Handed In Its Resignation After the Passage of a Censure Vote.

Port-au-Prince, Aug. 15.—A turbulent scene occurred in the chamber of deputies yesterday, that body refusing to indorse the ministry's action granting a concession for the construction of a telegraph line and censuring the ministry for incapacity and corruption.

This was followed by the ministers handing in their resignations to the president. Hippolyte is now busy with the formation of a new cabinet.

The city is still comparatively quiet, but it is a quiet that fills the people with alarm because they fear it may be followed by a new political storm like the bloody ones so frequent on this island.

DELIVER US FROM HIM.

The Republican Party Tired of the Negro.

He Has Been a Millstone Around Its Neck.

All He Was Petted for Was to Secure His Vote and Now Even That Ceases to be a Factor.

Washington, August 15.—When the grand encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic adjourned at Detroit many of the old veterans straggled this way, to look at the capital of the nation which they had preserved.

Several of these were from the south where they had cast their lot when the last gun was fired. They still retained a lively devotion, however, for the old comrades who stood beside them in the shock of battle.

One of them, a very attractive old man about sixty-five, wandered aimlessly about Newspaper row in search of his home papers.

He was from the lowlands of Mississippi but had originally been from Massachusetts, from which state he had entered the union army.

His name was Elijah H. Andrews. He had gone south after the war. After he had expatiated for some time on the wonderful changes that had taken place at the national capital since 1865 when he marched up Pennsylvania avenue in the grand review, he was asked about the negro question.

"The negro question," replied Mr. Andrews, "seems to agitate you people up here more than it does us down south. The negro will work out his own salvation if he is left alone. It is the politicians who want to manipulate him who are raising all the hullaballo about the negro being cheated out of his rights.

Of course the blacks are swindled out of their votes in some quarters. Sometimes they are hired to vote, sometimes they are controlled, sometimes they are kept away from the polls but there is no more corruption in the south than there is in the north.

"And if it was not for the outside agitation the blacks would not be voting against their own interests and the interests of the men who employ them."

"How are you satisfied with the adjustment of the negro question in the Grand Army?"

"I wasn't satisfied at all. Neither were the majority of the representatives of the southern posts. I can't blame the northern posts because they nor anyone else can understand the darkey until he lives with him awhile.

"Our desire was to formulate some law by which the colored man could be kept out of our posts. We did not want to put him beyond the pale of recognition by the soldiers, but we did not want him to mingle with us socially.

"We are better than he is. I am not talking of individuals but of races. Our race has always been free—has been civilized for centuries. The negro in this country has only been in contact with civilization for two centuries at most. He has been free twenty-five years.

"About him as a race, mark you, clings the abjectness of slavery still. If you hire him he wants a little more indulgence because he is ignorant and doesn't know his full duty in a contract. Nineteen out of twenty expect to be tipped if they accommodate you. Every moment they associate with you they impress you with their lack of individuality. It was said they stood between the king and those who would drag it down. That sounds well before a crowd and it takes well, but an explanation ought to go with it.

"I can't understand why politicians and statesmen and newspapers are so cowardly. Why can't they be frank and tell the truth about things without trying to twist every question for some partisan advantage.

"I went into the army to save the union. Ninety-nine in a hundred volunteers did the same thing. We fought the fight and won it. Not because we cared particularly whether he was free or not but because his freedom served our purpose.

To be sure there were many who thought slavery as an institution was wrong, but even they did not place the question of emancipation above the preservation of the union. The negro was freed for the same reason that the southern ports were blockaded.

When Lincoln freed the slaves he hushed the voice that called up and fed the hogs for the southern confederacy and paralyzed the arm that hoed the corn for the southern confederacy. There was no sentiment in it. Lincoln said he would preserve the union with or without slavery.

"As to the slaves fighting there is no doubt that they fought well, and many of them were killed. But were they fighting for the union? Why, they didn't know what the union was. And even if they had known what it was why should they have bared their breasts to the bullets for it?

The government had kept them in slavery after nearly all other governments had wiped the blot from their skirts. The white soldiers looked upon them as so many breastworks.

"Do you remember the celebration speech of Col. Hugh T. Reid, of the Fifteenth Iowa? He was a gallant, patriotic soldier but when the question arose as to the employment of colored troops he looked at it from an eminently practical standpoint. He urged their employment. 'Remember,' said he, 'that every colored soldier who stops a rebel bullet saves a white man's life.'

"That was the argument which did away with the objections of thousands of good white soldiers to the enlistment of the colored brother.

"There is no use of our deluding ourselves about this matter or seeking to delude the negroes. The white soldier fought for the union. The negro fought for his freedom. He would have gone under a white flag, a black flag, an English flag, a German flag or a confederate flag if he had been promised what he was promised under the starry flag.

"He was in the battle for himself. For that I admire him. I give him praise without stint for his bravery. But as to his fighting for the flag, the union and the government, that is all nonsense.

"He has floated into my party because my party has petted and fondled and been disgusted with him for the sake of his ballot.

"He has been a curse to the republican party not a blessing, because he has kept our own flesh and blood away from us in the south. But we are reaping as we have sown. I see in Ohio the colored people threaten to bolt. They think they have the balance of power there and they propose to use the whip on us. We have spoiled them and this recognition of them by the Grand Army as men who aided in saving the union, will give more strength to the arm which now proposes to lash the back of any party if it does not give them what they ask.

"I want to see McKinley and Sherman elected but if we can get rid of the negro, make his herd disperse, the defeat of McKinley, Sherman or any other man would be a small sacrifice. The man who being defeated can say he has been the means of relieving the republican party of the negro, will have all the honor the party can give him."

Ill Health Shattered His Mind.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 15.—M. F. Cox, of Philadelphia, a guest at Glen Summit hotel, a summer resort in the mountains near this city, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by cutting his throat. He may recover. Ill health was the cause. Mr. Cox is very prominent in Philadelphia society.

He is also a noted inventor. Among his inventions is the block system of running trains, which the Pennsylvania railroad has adopted on all of its lines.

He is also the inventor of a rail connection which has been adopted by all the latest constructed railroads in the world. He receives an immense royalty from the Pennsylvania company.

DISCUSSING THE RUSSIAN UKASE.

Various Opinions Expressed as to Its Result.

Berlin, Aug. 15.—The Boersen Courier says the Russian prohibition of rye exports will benefit Russia by securing her poor people cheap rye, and by raising the price of her wheat abroad. The Courier adds that the German government shows no intention of abolishing grain duties.

The Kreuz Zeitung suggests that Germany should prohibit the exportation of corn.

The Vossische Zeitung rejects the idea that the Russian ukase had a political basis. The Freissinige Zeitung takes the same view. Both journals urge the people to agitate against the corn duties.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Kreuz Zeitung asserts that Russian commissions reported to the government that the rye crop was not so bad as had been alleged; that there was no distress and that the prohibition of export was unnecessary. The government disregarded the report in order to aim a blow at Germany.

The German cabinet meets to-morrow and will discuss the effects of the rye upon the poor. Provincial governors have been ordered to report the stocks on hand and harvest prospects. It is asserted by official organs that Russia will have to rescind ukase because of its effects upon her finances.

THE CITIES OF OUR LAND

Some Information From the Census Bureau.

What it Costs to Run a Police Force.

What People Have to Pay for Water Works, Light Plants and Other Necessaries of Life.

Washington, August 15.—The census office has issued a bulletin on the social statistics of cities of the United States. The returns are yet incomplete, but a statement, comprising fifty of the principal cities, is given. The following subjects which appear in the tables are treated:

Streets, giving details as to length, width, paving, sidewalks, shade trees, parking, per centage of street area to city area, number of population per mile of street, average yearly cost of construction and repairs, and average yearly cost of cleaning.

Street lighting, showing the number and kind of lamps, the annual cost per lamp, and cost per head of population.

Water works, showing the estimated daily capacity of supply, capacity of reservoirs, average daily consumption, number of miles of mains, total cost of works and the annual average charge for water supply.

Sewers, showing total length, number of outlets, proportion of population to each mile of sewer, total cost of sewer system and average annual cost of maintenance and cleaning.

Police force, showing the number of men employed, average annual number of arrests, value of lost and stolen property recovered, annual cost of the force and cost per head of population.

Fire departments, showing the number of men employed, appartus in use, fire-alarm statistics, annual cost of departments, casualities and deaths, and per centage of general interest relating to the fire departments of cities.

From the tables it appears that the annual cost of each gas lamp in cities varies from $40 in New Orleans to $17.50 in Hoboken; while the annual cost of each electric lamp varies from $40 in San Francisco to $68 in Chicago.

The bulletin shows that gas lamps comprise more than 60 per cent. of all classes used for street lighting, but are rarely used exclusively for that purpose. Electric lighting for streets appears to be most favored in cities having more than 100,000 population.

Thirty-five cities of those comprising the bulletin own their own waterworks, the average cost of maintenance of the works being $3,791,041.

In cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants there is an average of 3.75 patrolmen to the square mile, and 4.3 of street to each patrolman, who makes annually an average of 50 arrests. The cost of the force to each head of population is $0.78, varying from $1.26 in New Haven to $0.60 in Nashville.

The average death rate in the police force of all the cities is 55 per 1,000, varying from 1,097 per 1,000 in Lowell and 1,023 per 1,000 in Hoboken to 12 per 1,000 in New York city, 15 per 1,000 in Minneapolis, and 132 per 1,000 in Hartford.

In 22 cities of over 100,000 inhabitants each the average annual cost of the fire department to each head of population is $0.81, varying from $1.78 in Boston and $1.06 in New York city to $0.64 in Chicago, $0.60 in Philadelphia, $0.70 in Brooklyn, $0.62 in St. Louis, $0.35 in Baltimore, $1.25 in San Francisco, and $0.92 in Cincinnati. In other cities under 100,000 inhabitants the average annual cost of the fire department to each head of population is $0.71.

In 21 cities of over 100,000 inhabitants each the total loss by fire during 1889 was $2.20 to each head of population, ranging from $6.27 in Buffalo, $3.32 in St. Louis, and $3.11 in Brooklyn, to $1.11 in Baltimore, $1.02 in Newark, and 55 cents in Washington. In 27 cities of less than 100,000 inhabitants each the total loss by fire during 1889 was $1.45 to each head of population, ranging from $6.68 in Lacrosse, $4.97 in Portland, and $3.31 in Rockford, to 21 cents in Newport, 19 cents in Hartford, and 16 cents in Lawrence. The large fire in Lynn, Mass., $89.87 to each head of population, has not been included in any of the averages.

The average daily consumption of water in New York is 112,000,000 gallons; Chicago, 100,000,000 gallons, and Philadelphia, 116,500 gallons. Although Buffalo consumes only 50,000,000 gallons daily it represents the largest amount (196 gallons) daily consumed by each head of population.

The total length of sewers of the three largest cities are New York, 464.47 miles; Chicago, 525, and Philadelphia, 380.

New York has 1,027 men attached to its fire department, Chicago 916, and Philadelphia 521.

New York with a total of 3,421 miles of streets, has 490 officers, detectives, etc., and 2,922 patrolmen. The average number of arrests annually is 74,594; average number of station house lodgers annually, 128,609. Value of lost and stolen property reccvered, $987,031.

The average cost of the New York force was $4,391,766; Chicago, $979,894; Philadelphia, $1,000,000 and Boston 963,335.

FLOWER FOR GOVERNOR,

And Grover Cleveland for the Presidency,

Is the Way Things are Shaping in New York.

Hill and Grover are Pulling Together for the Success of the Democratic Party.

Albany, Aug. 15.—There has been recently a noticeable air of confidence in the manner in which democrats of the knowing sort in Albany speak of coming events in their party. This phenomenon dates from the time Gov. Hill returned from his fishing and yachting vacation along the Atlantic coast. It has grown more marked, as one after another of the governor's intimates have visited him in the executive chamber or at the state mansion on Eagle street, and it is not limited to either side of the hitherto apparently irreconcilable quarrel between the adherents of Gov. Hill and Mr. Cleveland. There is more marked unanimity respecting probable nominees upon the democratic state ticket and more general assurance that however bitter the fight in Buffalo and other localities may be in the preliminary arrangements for the convention, the convention itself will be harmonious.

Mr. Hill's enthusiastic followers, who earlier in the canvas were unwilling to admit that the governor would take any great risk in running for a third term, concede now that he is not a candidate. They say he never contemplated the possibility of accepting a renomination.

The reservation with which the Hill men have regarded the candidacy of Roswell P. Flower is no longer adhered to as it was earlier in the canvass. At the same time the Clevelandites here declare with more confidence than formerly that there is nothing whatever in the way of Mr. Flower's nomination.

An Albany democrat, whose position of prominence entitles him to early information from the inner councils of his party—a Cleveland man, it is true, but not one given to sensational speculation for the sake of sensation—assured the reporter today that Mr. Cleveland was as certain to be nominated for president next year as Mr. Flower is to be nominated for governor by the approaching democratic state convention.

While he declined to give his name for publication or to be specific on the points discussed, he intimated that a plan of reconciliation between Cleveland and Hill had been devised, and would be put into operation at an early day, by which entire harmony would be made to prevail in the state convention, not only this year, but next year as well, when delegates are to be chosen for the national convention.

Under this plan Mr. Cleveland would be nominated for president without opposition and Gov. Hill would be called to the chairmanship of the national committee, to take charge of the Cleveland campaign.

The settlement thus skeletonized included Flower's nomination for governor, and a ticket for this fall made up of Cleveland and Hill men in as nearly equal proportions as possible, starting with Flower as a non-factional man, followed by Secretary of State Rice, who is also an easy go-between, and including Treasurer Danforth, who is a pronounced Hill man, whose renomination has been conceded by both sides.

In the scheme of reconciliation Lieut-Gov. Jones is not considered. It was suggested that the secretaryship of agriculture in Cleveland's cabinet might be held out as an inducement to him to work the granger element for Flower this year and the Alliance element for Cleveland next year.

To the very natural question of what became of David B. Hill's presidential aspirations in this rich spread of the public spoils, the gentleman here impersonally quoted felt more at liberty to speak.

"Mr. Hill is a young man," he said. "He is already possessed of a senatorship. In his case it will be easy to break over the tradition that the senate is a bar to the presidency. As chairman of the national committee he will become better acquainted with the leaders of his party and as senator he will learn about national affairs, and thus in a double sense he will be better prepared to take the nomination in 1896 than he is now.

"One more term for Mr. Cleveland will satisfy him and his adherents. It would have to satisfy them. For a third term would be impossible. Mr. Hill has no doubt come to see at last that his truest way to the presidency is to wait till the obstacles in his way are removed by time."

TWENTY DOLLARS A HEAD.

A Price Put on the Jews of Russia.

Natives Ordered to Rob, Plunder and Misuse Them When Found on the Border.

Boston, Aug. 15.—A sad story was told by Gershen Oping, from Tschilds, state of Kiev, Russia, who arrived at this port yesterday morning in the Warren steamer Roman, in company with about 150 Jews, most of whom were Russians.

About four weeks before he left Tschilds, he stated, placards were posted on all the lamp-posts and telegraph poles, which, being translated into English, read as follows:

"Be it known to all persons concerned that, from this day forth no Jew will be allowed near or on the border. Any Russian seeing a Jew on or trying to cross the border is allowed to take all his clothes and the property on his person; also to maltreat and ill-use him, but not to kill him. The penalty for killing him will be $20.

Mr. Oping said: "I was a money lender and lent about 500 roubles to the governor of Tschilds. A week afterward I received a notice to leave the place within three hours on penalty of going to Siberia for ten or more years. Taking all the ready cash and valuables I had at hand, I started for America with my family. While trying to steal across the border into Prussia in company with about 40 others we were pounced upon by a crowd of peasants who robbed us of all our money and valuables. After abusing us to their heart's content they allowed us to proceed on our way. Proceeding to Hamburg, we embarked on board a steamer for Hull, England, where we took a train for Liverpool, and there went on board the Roman."

Mr. Oping's story was confirmed by several of his fellow passengers.

Cause of Boats Grounding.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The cause of so many boats grounding on Lasalle street tunnel was to-day found to be three spiles which extended from six to nine inches above the roof of the tunnel. These spiles formed part of a cofferdam used for the construction of the tunnel 20 years ago.

When the structure was completed it was covered with earth for a foot or more before water was let in and then the spiles were sawed off close to the surface. As lake boats increased in size they began striking the top of the spiles and the current from their wheels washed away the earth covering the stone coping, leaving the top of the spiles extending above the tunnel.

Collision at Cleveland.

Cleveland, Aug. 15.—The propeller Montana, coming in from Buffalo, and the steamer Joliet, going out light, collided yesterday morning just outside of the breakwater. The Joliet struck the Montana on the port side forward of the after gangway, breaking her arch and cutting her fender streak in two. Her machinery was also damaged some. The Joliet escaped without injury and went on up. The damage to the Montana is $1,000. Repairs will be made here.

Low Water in the Erie Canal.

Buffalo, Aug. 15.—Serious complaints have been received of low water in the Erie canal. From Lockport to Pendleton, a distance of six miles, it is reported that about seventy-five grain laden boats, bound for tidewater, are aground on a rocky and uneven bottom. The trouble is said to be due to the draining of canal water by the mills and factories at Lockport.

Grain shippers, forwarders, and underwriters are much exercised over the matter. The Merchants' Exchange held a special meeting to-day at noon to consider it. Secretary Thurston wired Superintendent Hannan about the trouble, asking him to investigate immediately.

TERRIFIC TRAFFIC

Over the Perry Street Bridge To-Day.

Several Accidents, a Continuous Blockade and a Scene of Excitement All Day Long.

The imperative necessity for additional facilities for crossing Swan creek at the corner of Perry and Summit streets was well shown to-day. The travel over the narrow Perry street bridge has been something unparalleled to-day. Harbormaster Sceldon, with two bridge tenders, four policemen and a force of men under Superintendent Coleman, of the Robison lines, have been working unceasingly all day to keep the bridge clean, but the task has been too great. There has been a continual jam and blockade at this point all day long. Besides the usual large traffic over the bridge, extra cars have been put on by both street railway companies, and these have increased the troubles.

A large part of this trouble has been caused by the Robison Electric Street Railway company, whose crossing over this bridge is very defective. Four out of every five cars run off the track at the end of the bridge, several times power has given out and numerous other accidents have happened, each of which causes a delay of from one to ten minutes.

On account of cars being blocked on the bridge several vessels have been delayed in the creek, and this point has been a scene of excitement all day long. Then, to add to the hub-bub, every once in a while some of the wood work on the bridge will catch fire from the wires or a horse will be knocked down by a stick from the rail. Teamsters and others driving vehicles and those wishing to get up into the Fifth ward should go out St. Clair street for the sake of safety and avoid the blockade.

WHEAT JUMPS AGAIN.

December a Dollar Five in Chicago.

Tremendous Excitement in the Pit Caused by the Reports from Russia.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—There was tremendous excitement in wheat pit on 'change to-day. The December option opened at $1.02, two cents higher than it closed last night, and advanced rapidly to $1.05 with only a trifling business. The cause of the rally was buying by shorts, induced by reports of famine in Russia, higher prices in Liverpool and a rumor that Jim Keene, the well-known manipulator of New York was running a deal.

YOUNG LADY DROWNED.

Fatal Fall from the Dock Into Swan Creek.

Miss Julia Churchill Finds Death Instead of Her Sister, Whom She Intended to Visit.

Another sad drowning accident occurred last night by which Miss Julia Churchill lost her life. She stepped from the dock into Swan creek, and never rose again alive. Miss Churchill is a young lady 19 years of age, living in Auburndale, and her sister works on the steamer City of Toledo. Last evening Julia came down street about 10 o'clock to see her sister on the steamer and deliver to her a new dress which had just been finished at home.

At this time the steamer was lying at the coal docks across the creek from the foot of Monroe street. Miss Churchill went over to the steamer and started to board it when her head struck a plank that reached across the gangway about five feet high. This knocked her backwards and, missing her footing, she fell into the water between the dock and the steamer.

A man on the dock heard the splash, and running to the edge of the dock went down but could not find her. The alarm was sounded at once and soon several divers were at work in the attempt to find the unfortunate girl. Their efforts availed nothing, however, and then grappling hooks were obtained and by this means the body was found about an hour after the accident occurred.

From appearances it is thought that the girl never rose to the surface after going under water the first time and she was probably caught under the hull of the steamer.

The coroner was called and viewed the remains before they were taken from the water. His inquest was held to-day and resulted in a verdict of accidental drowning.

A sad feature of the case is the fact that the young lady was engaged to be married to a young man named Gus Strucholz, employed at Stolberg & Parks' furniture store. He expected to meet her last evening at the corner of Monroe and Summit streets, and after waiting some time started to search for her, only to find his love dead. The sister of the drowned girl was prostrated with grief when informed of the accident and was unconscious for some time.

Action to Set Aside a Deed.

John Neaster and Thomas Neaster began action in common pleas court to-day against Ellen Gilday and Joseph Gilday to set aside the deed to lot 144 Mott's addition.

It is claimed by the plaintiffs that the defendants prevailed on Patrick Nealson to make the transfer while he was mentally incapacitated by old age and a general breaking down of his intellect.

Canoe Club Preparing for a Picnic.

At the meeting of the Toledo Canoe club last evening it was decided to hold another basket picnic at Grassy Point on Labor day, and committees were appointed to make the arrangements. A steamer will be chartered to take the members and friends of the club down to the point. Besides the canoe races there will be swimming races, foot races, a game of base ball, music and dancing in the club house. The report made on the moonlight excursion held last Thursday showed that it was a complete success.

Big Claim Against the Clover Leaf.

John C. Isham began suit in common pleas court to-day against the Toledo, St. Louis & Kansas City Railway company to recover $16,000 damages for the appropriation of land on the plaintiff's farm in Waterville township, which contract or easement had been signed to the Toledo & Grand Rapids railway company. The plaintiff charges that the defendant, on coming into possession of the T. & G. R. road, never complied with the conditions of the grant.

The Reception to Rev. W. H. Sloan.

The reception tendered to Rev. W. H. Sloan last evening by the ladies of the congregation and members of the Y. P. S. C. E., at the First Baptist church, was a very enjoyable affair, and a social time was had by all. Ice cream and cake were served in the Sunday school room. The attendants had some words of admiration for the new appearance of the organ, which has been completely rebuilt and decorated and has all the qualities now of a fine new instrument, adding much to the appearance of the front of the church auditorium.

Yacht Albatross Sold.

The sloop yacht Albatross, owned by H. L. Kinnaman, of Tiffin, was to-day, sold to Richard Carpenter, of Lafayette, Ind. The new owner of the yacht will leave with her Monday for Catawba, from which place the yacht will hail hereafter. The Albatross is a 35-foot yacht, built three years ago by Mr. Howard, of this city, and is a splendid craft. She was not fitted out this season and has been lying at anchor near the water works. Thus another good boat leaves this port and marks the decline of yachting in Toledo.

The Isabella Circle Next Tuesday.

The monthly meeting of the Toledo Isabella circle occurs next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock with Mrs. C. Q. Murphy on Tenth street, between Adams and Oak. The literary feature of the occasion will be the reading and discussion of Dr. Lorit's essay on Columbus, led by Mrs. S. S. Bissell. A report from the committee on constitution and other interesting business will receive attention. All are invited who wish to aid in erection of an international woman's club house at the world's Columbian fair, and the study of our country's history relating to the fifteenth century period.

Death of Miss Ella Selner.

After years of feeble health, the final end came last evening to Miss Ella Selner, who died at the home of her mother, 321 Crittenden avenue, of peritonitis, at the age of 28. Miss Selner was a lovely lady in every respect. Although not always able, she was found in her place in church. For eight years she taught a Bible class in the Broadway M. E. Sunday school, composed of 20 persons. During her long illness she was ever cheerful, and bore it with Christian fortitude. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at the Broadway church. Deceased was a sister of Mr. C. W. Selner.

All on Account of a Name.

The Toledo Pump company in common pleas court to-day, filed action against Henry A. Schlingman, for an injunction and damages.

The plaintiff, in its petition, says that prior to April 4, 1890, the pump business known as the Toledo Pump Company made an assignment, and the accounts, stock and good will were purchased by the plaintiff which afterwards became incorporated as the Toledo Pump company. The plaintiff alleges that Henry A. Schlingman thereafter entered into the pump business under the title of the "American Pump Company," and advertises as formerly "The Toledo Pump Co." The plaintiffs ask that he be restrained from advertising as the "Toledo Pump Co." and that they be awarded suitable damages.

Judge Harmon issued a temporary injunction.

A Disastrous storm in Minnesota.

Rain, Wind, and Hail Join to Badly Batter up a Pretty Little Village.

Ellsworth, Minn., Aug. 15.—The most terrific windstorm that ever passed over this section of Minnesota, struck Ellsworth at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon and left the town a pretty complete wreck.

A dark cloud with a greenish tint along its edges came swirling in from the northwest and crushed in pretty much everything in its path.

The Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota elevator was completely blown to pieces. The Congregational church was partially blown down, the dwelling of D. F. Crafter was thrown from its foundation, and the Burlington depot suffered great damage about the west end. Several box cars were hurled from the track like so much kindling wood, but fortunately no lives were lost. There is not a building in the village that was not hit by the storm and blown away. The loss will reach $25,000.

A dispatch from Lake Benton, Minn., says that place was visited by the most destructive hail storm yesterday that was ever known in that vicinity. At 4:30 the storm suddenly struck, and for the next 10 minutes he air was thick with hail stones, many of which weighed four ounces. Nearly every pane of glass on the north and west sides of buildings were broken. The probability is that $2,000 will not more than pay for the broken glass. In the country everything in the shape of uncut grain in the path of the storm was annihilated.

A terrific rain and hail storm passed over Fulda, Minn. Hail larger than goose eggs poured down for half an hour, breaking hundreds of windows and stripping leaves and small branches from the trees. Farmers report corn and flax badly damaged. Most of the wheat, oats and barley has been cut. What was standing will not be a one-third crop.

FACTS FROM FOSTORIA.

Looking After the Boys in the Glassworks.

A Fremont Couple of Elopers Overtaken by a Pursuing Husband —General and Personal.

Fostoria, August 15.—(Special)—Humane Officer Knowles yesterday investigated the condition of the 45 orphan boys employed at the Nickel Plate glass works, much complaint as to their bad treatment having reached him.

He finds, however, that the food is sufficient and good, their clothes good, if common, and their treatment in general as good as they require.

Thursday afternoon a man and young woman came in from Tiffin on the B. & O., and went to the Earl House and would not register. On the next train from Tiffin came a man who proved to be the husband of the woman who was eloping with the other man.

He met them at the hotel, had a few words with them, and took his wife home to Fremont, where it seems the whole party live. No names could be ascertained.

The republican county convention takes place at Tiffin on Saturday, Aug. 29. Fostoria has 43 delegates.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Carroll left to-day for Chicago, where they will make their permanent home.

The One Hundred and First Ohio regiment will hold their reunion here on the 27th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Hoyt and son, of Lafayette, N. J., are the guests of Rev. G. E. McMauniman.

Misses Laura Tracy, Ollie Green and Olio Nichols left yesterday for Vermillion, Cleveland, Lakeside and Huron.

A Card.

Mrs. Milton King desires to thank the employes of the Toledo Bolt and Nut works, particularly Mr. John Neeley, for their kindness to Mr. King's children. Had some, who were very devoted friends while assisting to spend Mr. King's earnings, now performed even the poor duty of partial restitution, the sum contributed by unpretending but generous friends would have been considerably increased.

BARNUM'S GREAT SHOW

Puts in an Appearance in Toledo.

The Streets Lined to See the Parade The Afternoon Performance—To-Night's Exhibition.

This is circus day, and in consequence the town is full of people from the country for miles around and the street cars are crowded to an extent that makes travel very difficult. The small boy is in his glory, and is to be seen everywhere, but he is happiest in the vicinity of the immense tents of the circus.

Barnum & Bailey's great shows arrived in the city at an early hour this morning and soon their mammoth canvas covered the big common on Dix street, near Broadway. The facility with which everything was handled enabled the preparations for the parade to be made in good time, so that the immense cavalcade started on its tour of the city before 10 o'clock.

The streets along the line of march were jammed with people, many of whom had been standing in place since an early hour. None were disappointed, however, and the gorgeous procession surpassed the expectations of the most enthusiastic. The street display given by this famous show this year surpasses all former efforts, both in size and elegance. All the usual features of the circus parade were on hand, with many novelties beside. There were the open cages with animal trainers inside, fondling all sorts of wild beasts, several excellent bands discoursed fine music, while the steam calliope also added its musical shriek to the din. There were elephants, and camels in large herds, while the display of nursery floats caught the attention of the little ones.

The cavalcade of riders contained nearly 200 ladies and gentlemen in tasty costumes, and some fine horse flesh was exhibited. The parade was made without accident and was voted a huge success by all who saw it.

This afternoon it seemed as if the surrounding country had moved to the show grounds, so great was the crowd which attended the exhibition. It is not too much to say the standard of excellence was never so great in the circus ring. Every feature was novel and interesting, and the entire program was rendered to the satisfaction of the vast throng.

The hippodrome races and athletic contests which formed the second part of the entertainment were all first-class of their kind; but the interest of the occasion was largely concentrated on Imre Kiralfy's magnificent spectacular pageant, "Nero; or the Destruction of Rome," which was produced on a colossal scale.

The menagerie was of a high order of excellence, and included several species of animals never before seen in Toledo The critical verdict on the whole performance was that the greatest show maintains its lead by continuing to excel its own past attainments.

The exhibition to-night promises to be even more largely attended than this afternoon.

OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

Learns of a Schoolmate of Harriet Beecher Stowe—Daniel Webster.

Toledo has in her midst one who was once a schoolmate of the famous author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. This is Mr. D. G. Saltonstall, whose venerable form has so long been seen in the Merchants' and Clerks' Savings Institution. Speaking of the Beecher family incidentally Mr. Saltonstall said he attended school in Litchfield, Conn., with Harriet and George Beecher.

"She was a very bright girl then," said he; "she was in my grammar class and was the brightest scholar in it. We had to write dissertations on subjects given us by the teacher, and these were dropped into a box without signatures. Once a week they were brought forth, read, and commented upon. Most of them were crude, but when one was particularly sprightly we always turned to each other with the verdict, 'That's Harriet Beecher. I remember her as distinctly as if it was but last year."

Mr. Edward Bissell is too busy a lawyer to find time to gossip with his penmore's the pity! Something was said about Longfellow, the other day, and Mr. Bissell remarked, "He was the profes-or of French, in Harvard, in my day. We had a genuine Frenchman to do the real teaching, but Mr. Longfellow came in the class room frequently and sat out the lesson. He was a beautiful looking man and the students almost bowed before him. During my Harvard course I had frequent opportunity to see and hear Daniel Webster.

"When I knew that he was to take part in a case in Boston I managed to be present if possible. Yes, the term 'God-like' was fully applied to Webster. His presence was commanding and his intellect shone through his face. Of course he was treated with the greatest respect by bench and bar, but his mind was as keen as it was broad, and his position at the bar was due to this fact, and not to anything else. He was born to be a leader and men followed him instinctively but were proud of it. Among any body of great men Webster would have been singled out as one of the greatest."

MISCELLANY.

The population of Paris is stated to be 2,260,948, or 162,024 less than it was five years ago.

The Panhandle, of Texas, has already sent forward over one thousand car loads of wheat, and this from a section which but a few years ago was regarded as fit only for grazing.

The Manchester ship canal is about three-quarters finished, and will cost completed $45,000,000, though the original estimate was $25,000. Its total length will be 35½ miles with a bottom width of 120 feet and a surface width of 230 feet, depth 26 feet.

Mr. H. E. wells, of Imlay City, Mich., who enlisted in a Michigan regiment and was captured during the war, has not shaved since he left Andersonville prison. His beard is now 5 feet, 9 inches in length.

The sellers of railroad supplies now find their best markets in the south, and the prospects are for a rush into road work within the next few years. Many sections are making special offers for road extensions into particular territory.

J. Lamb Doty, United States consul at Tahiti, is the youngest consulin the service of the United States. He was only 20 years old when appointed.

A penurious old fellow went to a Maine country grocery store, one day, and asked the price of an empty molasses hogshead. The price was not satisfactory and a long wrangle finally resulted in the old man making a very mean offer which was indignantly refused. "No, sir," said the grocer, "you cannot steal that hogshead, but I will give it to you if you earn it by rolling it home." It was in the spring and there was a layer of soft snow on the ground, but the challenge was accepted and old Parsimony rolled the hogshead a distance of more than a mile. He was not a strong man except in will and it cost him his life, for he never did any more work and died in a few weeks.

Australia, it would appear, has some gigantic caterpillars. Mr. A. S. Orliff, of Sidney, mentions one moth larva, abundant during the summer season, which is from 7 to 12 inches long. Species are numerous which vary from six to eight inches in length.

It is known that wasps' nests often take fire, supposed to be caused by the chemical action of the wasps upon the paper material of the nest itself. May this not account for many mysterious fires in barns and outbuildings?

There is a funny row about Ibsen and his plays in Australia. In the beginning of June a theatrical matinee was given to raise funds for the Women's College of the University of Sydney, and the play selected was Ibsen's "Dukkehjem." Various dignitaries allowed their names to be printed as patrons of the performance, but when the Countess of Jersey the governor's lady was applied to she refused, saying that from what she had heard of Ibsen she had no wish to see one of his plays and that it was impossible that an actress who could play in such a piece could be a lady. This was thought to be a cruel and gratuitous insult to Miss Achurch, who was to play the principal character. Letters have been written to the London newspapers remonstrating against Lady Jersey's narrowness.

The market quotations in the BEE are compiled from United Press special dispatches and from reports received by the Toledo Produce Exchange, and specially arranged by Mr. Denison B. Smith, secretary of the Exchange.

OFFICE OF THE TOLEDO BEE, TOLEDO, O., Aug. 15.

London wheat and corn on passage excited and 1 shilling and 6 pence higher for all positions. Country markets strong. Weather showery. Liverpool wheat strong and 2 pence per 100 pounds higher; corn higher.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 842,634 bu, compared with 846,302 bu on the same day last year.

The receipts of wheat to-day at seven principal western points are 466,492 bu in excess of the corresponding Saturday in 1890.

The receipts of grain for the week at eight principal western points show an excess in wheat over the corresponding week in 1890 of 3,357,000 bu; corn a deficiency of 648,000 bu, and oats 632,000 bu.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were 437,114 bu of wheat and flour to make an aggregate of 500,000 bu and 33,000 bu corn.

The exports for the week at four Atlantic ports have been wheat 2,814,000 bu, corn 125,000 bu, oats 83,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are all much higher and strong.

There is no end of what may be misleading in the public accounts of the markets. A private telegram from New York to Chicago, printed by the press reporter, says: "Foreigners have sold over a million of bu of wheat, while the public report of New York market says 700,000 bu of wheat were sold for export." Take your choice, gentlemen. Both may be correct.

Who understands about the rye question? The price has risen 8c per quarter in Amsterdam, and both there and in Berlin it is decidedly higher than wheat.

In our extracts herein it will be seen that in London considerable alarm is felt at the reports that American farmers will hold their wheat. On this subject it may be well to say that what may have occurred on a basis of 86c per bu at the lake markets, is less likely on a basis of $1.00.

At Chicago the leading basis of appreciation appears to be that a coterie of strong parties east are helping along the advance.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press makes the statement that out of 21 years past only in seven would farmers have gained. How do you know? Suppose the farmers in these 14 years had not sold their surplus in 60 days, would not the price have advanced?

We have to report another day of great excitement and large advance in prices of grain. As usual, dealers were looking for a break in the markets, but instead abroad and at home prices have made the largest jump of the year. It is the unexpected that happens in this business. It would seem that in all the markets of the world there had been a large short interest which adds to the volume of buying. It would seem to the naked eye that the pace is too hot for prudent operating, but in the condition of the market we do not charge for wisdom or a view.

In New York August wheat closed at $1 13½, a gain of 5½c; September at $1 13½, a gain of 5¾c; August corn at 74c, a gain of 1¼c; September at 70¾c, a gain of 1c.

In Chicago August wheat closed $1 07½, a gain of 7¾c; September at $1 05, a gain of 7c; August corn at 64¾c; September at 62½c, a gain of 2¾c.

In Toledo the wheat market has been very active and strong to-day, with the usual alternations of weakness. The fluctuations have been frequent and wide, as will be seen by our list of sales. In the last half hour prices broke off 1¾c for August, and after 'Change there were sales of cash wheat a shade under closing price.

On the call August wheat sold at $1 03¾ to $1 03¾; September at $1 03¾ to $1 03½; December at $1 05¼ to $1 05.

After the call August sold at $1 04¾ and with irregularity advanced to $1 05¾ and closed at $1 07, a gain of 5½c; September sold at $1 03¾ and closed at $1 06¼, a gain of 5¾c; December at $1 05 and closed at $1 03½c, a gain of 6c.

Cash wheat was in the usual demand with large sales and a large advance. No 2 soft sold at $1 04¾ and closed at $1 07½, a gain of 5c. No 3 soft at $1 03¾ to $1 04½ and higher to day; No 4 soft $1 01. Rejected No 1 $1 00 to $1 02; No 2 white at $1 02. Corn nothing doing. Oats nothing doing.

Rye was in strong demand and advanced largely. No 2 sold at opening at 98½@@ $1 00. Later August sold at $1 04@1 05; September at $1 02@1 05.

Clover seed was dearer and more active. October sold at $4 70@4 80, and December at $4 80.

The tin liar appears to have gone up the spout.—Commercial-Gazette.

And his name is Republican Editor.

The Grand Army post at Vicksburg, Miss., has disbanded on account of the Detroit ruling on the color line question. Vermont and Mississippi appear to view this question in the same light.

English authors and men of letters are saying many pleasant things of the genius and work of the lately deceased Lowell. But what will be thought, by the average American, of Sir Edwin Arnold's opinion, which ranks Lowell "next to Walt Whitman."

The Republic calls attention to the political sentiments expressed by southern lumbermen who have been in convention in St. Louis this week. Cleveland and Blaine were the favorites against the field. Harrison and Hill were hardly mentioned as possible candidates.

Hon. Gil. Barger, who conducted the successful Hoadly campaign in 1883, is appointed vice chairman of the democratic executive committee, and Hon. L. C. Cole, of Bowling Green, is appointed secretary. These gentlemen are hustlers and will be worthy lieutenants to Col. Neal.

Italy is crushed beneath a debt of two billion dollars, but it has taken twenty-five years to pile the debt up. What they need over there, to make a real good showing of deficit, is to have a Billion Dollar congress sit a year at Rome. By the way, there have been a number of our Billion Dollar congressmen open to such engagements since November, 1889.

The dedication of the monument at Bennington, Vt., in which President Harrison will "assist," will be made the excuse for a prolonged electioneering tour through New England by the president. He will be accompanied by Secretary Foster and other "safe" members of the cabinet, that is, those whom he deems are using their office to further his second term chances. It is just possible President Harrison would make more votes for himself if he would not go junketing quite so much, but would devote himself to the duties of his present term, instead of reaching after the next.

Mr. J. S. Clarkson has written a signed editorial for the New York Recorder in which he notes "with sincere gratification" the "uprising both of farmers and of farm values." He welcomes the return of the farmer to politics as the beginning of a better era. Mr. Clarkson's devotion to the republican party is as certain as that the active interest of the farmers in politics will overthrow that party. The inference is that he is whistling in the Recorder to keep his courage up. But perhaps the Recorder has secured his services as its "funny man." At any rate the article evokes the smile of him who understands Mr. Clarkson and his methods.

A mugwump exchange congratulates the democrats that in this year's conventions they have a clear course in framing platform resolutions on the tariff. Having always opposed excessive tariff, and having such a tariff now in operation, the game is in their own hands, so to speak. But what are the republican platform makers going to do? asks our mugwump exchange. "Dare they indorse and uphold the tariff of 1890?" Certainly they will and must. Is not the author of this monstrosity the republican candidate in Ohio? The issue between the two parties was never so clear. Let the people settle it at the polls. Platforms do not count so much this year. "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us."

In China the government takes charge of the official mail, and leaves the people to organize their own postal arrangements to their own satisfaction. For a long time English merchants in that country, and there are many of them, have been holding up these Chinese postoffice establishments, run by private enterprise, as models to be envied by the British merchant at home. Now comes a writer in the Cornhill magazine who describes in glowing terms the working of the postoffice system in China, and contrasts it with the grievances under the monopoly-run department at home, greatly to the detriment of the latter. It is refreshing to read of such advocacy of private enterprise in these days when so many advocate government control of so many things.

The Boston Herald pertinently says:

Postmaster-General Wanamaker's proposition of a pension for clerks in the postoffice service may be the emanation of a kind heart; but we are, perhaps unkindly, but still we must believe very appropriately, impelled to ask if Mr. Wanamaker pensions clerks who have served long and faithfully in his own business.

Mr. Wanamaker does not pension his clerks, and is never likely to inaugurate such a system. The system of indirect taxation of the people to provide the government with unnecessary revenues is already inaugurated and in booming operation. Therefore Mr. Wanamaker as postmaster-general may suggest a philanthropic diversion of some of this government pap. It costs him nothing. To pay such a pension himself, to his own employes, would be altogether another matter. There is a good deal of the "cheap John" about the "business man of the cabinet."

When the rye crop is short, the principle means of subsistence for the peasantry of Germany and Austria is threatened. They have never taken kindly to eating of wheat bread. It costs too much, and they do not consider it as palatable. Russia produces much of the rye that is used to make bread for her neighbors. There are broad acres of Russian land cultivated for this product by cheap labor. Therefore the ukase of the czar, prohibiting the export of rye this year, creates serious alarm in other European countries. Dear bread and an insufficient amount of it may work more mischief among a hungry peasantry than all the socialist propaganda that was ever circulated. The approaching winter may be a serious crisis in European affairs, for it must be believed the czar has not issued this ukase for political reasons, but from necessity. He does not love Germany and Austria, but neither did he love these countries last year. He foregoes the receipt of revenues from rye export, revenues which Russia greatly needs, only because the condition of the Russian peasantry is such that it is not safe for even that autocratic government to send away its present insufficient food supply. And while Europe faces a possible famine the graneries of the United States are overflowing. It is again a significant indication of the modern interdependence of man on man, of nation on nation, that the ukase of Alexander III, concerning one crop in his kingdom, should send up the price of all grain cereals in the markets of the United States.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.

"Poor's Manual for 1891" gives the summarized tabulation of the railway system of the United States for the last fiscal year in his usual complete and concise form. The aggregate length of track laid up to December 31, 1890, was 166,817 miles. The net increase of mileage for the calendar year was 5,498, and for the fiscal year 3,426. The largest amount of railroad construction for the year was in the group of South Atlantic states, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. In this group 1,186 miles of new track were constructed. In the New England group of states only 109 miles were built.

The assets of all roads is given as $10,697,817,239, and the liabilities as $10,393,781,120. The total capital investment in 1890 is placed at $10,122,635,900. Gross earnings were $1,097,847,428, or 10.8 per cent. on investment. Net earnings were $346,921,318, or 3.4 per cent. on the capital. Comparison of these figures with the tables of preceding years shows a slight increase in profit over the two preceding years, but the profits of the earlier years of the last decade were not reached.

The following interesting figures on the growth of the railroad business are also offered by this invaluable compilation: In 1830 there were 23 miles of rail; in 1840, 2,818 miles; 1850, 9,021 miles; 1860, 30,626 miles; 1870, 52,922 miles; 1880, 93,296 miles; 1890, 166,817 miles. The largest increase in mileage in any one year was in 1887.

The Same Old Story.

Niedringhaus is defiant. A few months ago he was begging for a tin tariff. Not satisfied with this, he next begged for the privilege of importing foreign tinplate workers. An Awful Death.

Pittsburg, Aug. 15.—Leonard Weaver, aged 48, and John Shuster, 37 years old, night soilers, were drowned in a deep cesspool on Thirty-ninth street last night. Weaver went into the vault to remove some rubbish, was overcome by gas and fell to the bottom. Shuster, who went to Weaver's assistance, was also overcome by gas and fell. Both men were dead when their bodies were recovered half an hour later. Both were married.

Paper Warehouse Burned.

Philadelphia, Aug. 15.—The large paper warehouse of A. G. Elliott & Co., corner Sixth and Jane streets, was badly damaged by fire at an early hour this morning. The fire was first discovered in the basement, where there was an immense amount of paper was stored. The loss is not yet known, but it is thought will be heavy.

A HOT WAVE IS COMING.

People Can Swelter Until September 11.

Storms and Their Journeys Across the Land.

Interesting Information for People Who Like to Watch the Elements While on a Lark.

Special to the Bee.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 15.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave due to cross the continent from 16th to 20th. The next regular storm wave will be due to leave the Pacific coast about the 22d, cross the Rocky-Allegheny valley from 23d to 25th and reach the Atlantic coast about the 26th.

This storm will develop its greatest force on the western portion of the continent about the 22d and about that time the weather will become very hot in the southern states. This hot wave will affect the eastern states about the 25d or 24th.

A storm wave may also be expected in the Mississippi valley about the 21st but it will probably not be of great force nor large dimensions.

The hottest weather of the summer will occur about the dates of these storm waves and the weather will continue to average hot for this unusually cool year till about September 11.

A few places will receive excessive and concentrated rains from these storm waves, but, on the whole, the rainfall will be deficient and the local drouths will become more serious. There is but little prospect of rain in the local drouth districts before September 3d to 7th. Comparatively the coming weather will be the calm before the storm.

Weather and Science Notes.

Every person who contemplates studying astronomy and planetary meteorology the coming fall and winter should at once subscribe for either the daily or weekly issue of this paper, clip the weather letters and make of them a scrap book for reference.

To such subscribers I will begin to give special instructions early in next month and will furnish them with a weekly weather map, a diagram showing the positions of the moon and planets relative to the earth and sun each week, a chart illustrating the nature and extent of the planetary influences on the weather and a letter of special instructions. Terms will be within the reach of all. Any one who can read and write may learn. For full particulars write me.

I am sorry to say that the daily weather maps published by the national weather bureau are not what they should be, and are really of less value than they were years ago.

It is not only my right but my duty to say this, for no man in America has so often and so urgently advocated the support of the weather bureau by national appropriations as I have.

I have often called attention to these daily maps advising schools to obtain them and the pulic to study those that are hung in the postoffices of all the cities, but I can no longer recommend these maps.

To the casual observer they are utterly unreliable, and only to experts in weather science are they of any practical use. This must not be construed as a censure of the new weather bureau chief, for he has not had time to determine what changes should be made.

Of all the daily weather maps published in the United States, so far as I have seen, the map published at Washington, at the headquarters of the weather bureau, is the least and the Denver map the most meritorious.

I have good reasons for making these statements. The Washington map no longer contains the barometric readings of the signal stations, but instead the isobaric lines are drawn without the least regard to the well-known formation of storm centers.

Where two storm centers appear in North America the isobars are often drawn from one to the other instead of encircling each. This obliterates the storm centers from the maps and makes them unintelligible and useless to the public.

The consequence is that not one person in a thousand who go to the postoffice ever care to look at these maps.

The Kansas City maps, in drawing these isobars, are also utterly unreliable, but the isobar deficiency, while not remedied for the public, is partially remedied for the use of experts by giving the isobaric readings of each signal station, and therefore the Kansas City maps, while on a smaller scale, are superior to the Washington maps, and this Kansas City map is a fair sample of the map published in several cities.

The Denver map gives the readings of the barometer and has the isobars drawn so as to show each high and low barometer at a glance and the condition of the weather all over the country may be readily observed.

But the Denver map contains an error that is fatal to the usefulness and correctness of all the map, a fundamental error of the professor of meteorology at Washington. The isobars are drawn in a circle while it is impossible for any isobar surrounding either a high or low barometer, to form a circle.

The uniform motions of these weather disturbers—the isobars surrounding them—must necessarily form flat spirals instead of circles. These isobars must conform to the movements of the wind nearing the center of the low barometer as they circle from right to left around it and receding from the center of the high barometer as they circle around it in the opposite direction.

I have repeatedly called attention of the weather bureau at Washington to these serious errors, but instead of correcting them the maps are continuously growing less useful.

The isobars and isothems drawn over these maps are of special interest to the public because if properly drawn a moment's observation of the map indicates to the casual observer the general condition of the weather and greatly aids the thousands who have become accustomed to the use of barometers in calculating what to-morrow will bring in the weather line.

The errors I have pointed out make the maps worse than useless to the public for to the masses they convey no intelligence, the people become disgusted with the great expense and want to withdraw the appropriations. I make these criticisms with the hope of doing good and not from any ill will toward the weather bureau, for its officers have uniformly treated me with much respect and liberality in furnishing me with all the publications of their departments. I am still in favor of supporting the national weather bureau by liberal donations, but will insist on reforms.

BEFORE COMMISSIONER HALL.

Moxie Has a Hearing and the Case Postponed—A Mansfield Man Discharged.

Yesterday afternoon United States Commissioner Hall heard two interesting cases of violation of the internal revenue laws. The first was John N. Moore, of West Mansfield, Logan county, charged with carrying on the business of retail liquor dealer without having the necessary revenue license. Mr. Hall, after hearing the case, decided that the evidence was not sufficient, and promptly discharged him.

Another case was that of David Marx, better known as "Moxie," of Canton avenue. He was charged with failure to display his internal revenue stamp as ordered by law. The case was continued till next Tuesday under $100 bail, when Mr. Marx will have an opportunity of telling why he failed to produce his stamp.

FRATERNAL FEELING

At the Abstinence Convention at Washington—Former Toledo Divine Participates.

The Catholic Total Abstinence Societies of the country held their convention in Washington last week, and it was remarkable for the interests brought together. Heretofore these gatherings have been rather exclusive, but the event just closed was entirely different. Among those who addressed the convention were Miss Frances Willard, Miss Ames, of the W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Charlotte Smith, of the Women's Industrial Union. Fraternal delegates were elected to the coming convention of the W. C. T. U. at Boston. On the closing evening a mass meeting was held at St. Patrick's church, which was addressed by Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Cotter, of Minnesota; Bishop Keane, of Washington; Miss Willard and Rev. Father O'Brien, formerly of Toledo. A local paper has the following reference to the latter:

"Rev. O'Brien's remarks were enthusiastically received, and they are beginning to attract quite wide attention, having already been noticed in Chicago and eastern papers. In brief, he said: 'I thank God that I live in the day of a new liberty, a day when protestants and catholics forget their differences to combine against the common foe that curses all our homes; a day when, though we cannot kneel at a common altar of religion, we kneel at the altar of a common patriotism.'"

Disastrous Collision at Attica To-Day.

One Train Runs Into the Rear End of Another.

A Dozen Cars Smashed and the Station Made a Mass of Kindling Wood—Nobody Killed.

Tiffin, Aug. 15.—(Special)—A disastrous wreck, fortunately unattended by loss of life, occurred on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Attica station, 16 miles east of this city, this morning.

A west bound freight, running 25 miles an hour, crashed into the rear end of a local standing at the depot.

The engine of the freight and a dozen or more cars were demolished together with the depot, a large and substantial frame building.

Three cars were hurled bodily through the building, one being thrown 20 feet beyond.

The engineer and fireman of the freight jumped and saved their lives, although Fireman Murphy received a broken leg and other serious injuries.

It is reported that the conductor of neither train had been notified of the presence of the other on the line and consequently extra precautions were not deemed necessary.

The first intimation the conductor had of the approach of the freight was from its sound, when he hurried back a flagman but the dense fog prevented the signal being seen in time to even check the momentum of the oncoming train.

A MAGNIFICENT RESIDENCE

To Be Erected by Isaac D. Smead on the Corner of Monroe and Grand Avenue.

The handsome triangular lot on the corner of Monroe street and Grand avenue, facing the little park located at the intersection of these streets, was purchased yesterday by Col. Isaac D. Smead for $6,000. The lot, including the park, is 266x379x200 feet. It is one of the finest locations in Toledo for a residence, and it is understood Col. Smead proposes erecting one of the finest in the city.

GOOD THING FOR TOLEDO.

Location of the Armour Beef Warehouses in This City.

The Deal Closed and Plans Perfected for the New Building—Armour's Relations With the Clover Leaf and Its Probable Results.

The announcement in the BEE a few days ago that Armour & Co., of Chicago had decided to erect a large warehouse in this city means more than is apparent at first glance.

Yesterday the deal was consummated, and Mr. W. F. Favorite, Armour's confidential agent, signed the deeds and took possession of the property, which is located on the corner of Erie and Washington streets. The purchase of the property was made through George E. Pomeroy of Paul Raymond, the consideration being $8,500. It is proposed to erect a pressed brick and cut stone building to cost $25,000.

This in itself would be of no great interest were it not for the fact that behind it lies probably a larger enterprise. It is a well known fact that Mr. P. D. Armour is one of the largest bond and stockholders of the Clover Leaf railway and also a director of that line. It is understood that the company look upon Toledo as an excellent distributing point, and the facilities that the Clover Leaf will afford, with which by the way switches have been made and right of way secured, Toledo promises to become a great meat distributing point.

The fact that Armour & Co., have taken an interest in Toledo, means much. That enterprising firm when it starts out on a project, generally carries it to a successful completion.

Architects are at work on the plans and as soon as perfected the building will be rushed up just as quickly as it is possible to do so. Toledo is to be congratulated on this enterprise.

The Obstructions In the River.

To the Editor: I have cut the following from your paper of Thursday evening:

"The attention of the council is called to the necessity of immediate action with reference to the bar in the river which extends from what is known as 'Goose Point' to Adams street. Boats are frequently grounded on this mud bar and the commercial interests of Toledo are thereby seriously injured. Three large steamers of the Ward line, in the carrying employ of the Duluth Imperial Mill company, have run aground on this bar the present season. If it is the duty of local authorities to dredge the channel it should be done at once. If it is work for the government, the mayor, the council, the produce exchange, and business interests generally, should unite in urging prompt measures of relief."

As chairman of the committee on harbors of the produce exchange, I called at the council chamber about three weeks ago, and ascertained that the necessary legislation had been passed to authorize the dredging of the obstruction you refer to. The matter was then in the hands of the engineer, who agreed to have the plans and specifications completed two weeks ago. When this is done the work can be advertised for bids. I have seen no advertisement, although it may have been made. It is a work of the first necessity, and after all the government has done for us to admit vessels, it is certainly our duty to prevent, if possible, their grounding in our harbor.

Respectfully, etc.,

SPOILING THE STREETS.

Several Pavements Ruined by Pipe Line Contractors

Who Fill Trenches in a Careless Manner.

Property Owners Complaining Bitterly on Several Streets—Suggestions for a Remedy—What Has Already Been Done.

Much complaint has recently been made of the manner in which paved streets have been torn up by the contractor laying the city natural gas pipe line. Investigation of the facts shows that these complaints are well founded, streets have been torn up and the pavements very poorly replaced in several instances. It is high time that some action be taken by the gas trustees in order to prevent the wholesale ruination of the city's handsomely paved streets.

The conference of last Thursday night between the street committee of the council and the board of gas trustees was a move in the right direction. If more such conferences were held much good would result; as it is, great damage has already been done by the careless contractors. The streets that have suffered most are Lenk street, upper Broadway, Bancroft and lower Erie.

Said Councilman Huberich of the Fourth ward. "The manner in which that pavement was ruined is a disgrace to the city. The earth was replaced without any tamping, except such as was given by the men tramping on it and in some instances the use of rammers not much larger than broomsticks. When this earth settles the pavement will cave in and the street will be spoiled. The property owners paid their money for a first-class Medina block stone pavement. Such a pavement they received only to have it spoiled almost before completion. I should think that the gas trustees would have pride enough in the city and interest in the streets to have pavements properly replaced over these pipes."

The gas main on Lenk street runs from the canal to Wisconsin street. This street was paved with Medina stone a few months ago and the work had just been completed when a portion of the street for its whole length was torn up for the gas pipe. This trench remained open and unprotected for about three weeks, during which time the earth along the sides crumbled away badly. The trench was then refilled and the paving replaced without the earth having been properly tamped or settled.

In consequence of this the pavement has been practically ruined. On the side in which the pipes were laid the line of the trench is very plainly marked, in some places the stones forming a ridge, and in others being considerably sunken. This gives the appearance of an old pavement, when, in fact, it has but just been put down.

In two years, perhaps less, it will be necessary to make repairs in this street even if an entirely new pavement is not required. Property owners along this street are justly indignant and want to know who will pay the damage.

On Broadway between Langdon and Bowman streets the fire-brick pavement was torn up for the city pipe. The pavement here was also replaced in a very slip-shod manner. This pavement was laid but two years ago and one side is in first-class condition, but on the northerly side where the pipe was placed it looks very much like an old and worn pavement. The surface is uneven over the trench and consequently the bricks have been badly damaged. The pipe was put in only this spring and when next winter is over the pavement will be in a far worse condition. Property owners out here are also inquiring as to the responsibility for this damage.

Gas mains were laid in Bancroft street this spring from Ashland a venue to Lagrange street. Here they cut through cedar block pavement which was put down last summer. Property owners along the street are complaining that the earth was not properly replaced in this trench. As a result they are expecting their pavement to sink out of sight and they are but little pleased at the prospect.

There are a number of cases of less consequence where more care should have been taken in replacing pavement. One instance is at the corner of Seventeenth and Madison streets where a very poor job was done with cedar block.

On Erie street, from Dash to Ash, the gas trench was left open for some time and the contractor who was paving the street at that time was seriously interfered with. This is somewhat similar to the case of Oliver street, from Clayton street to North railroad avenue, which was discussed Thursday night. Here the paving contractor is delayed by the laying of the natural gas mains and the net work of service connections. This, however, was unavoidable, but will greatly impair the stability of the pavement when completed, as it is to be placed over these trenches at once. Some of the earth has been put back into the trenches before Mr. Koster made complaint to the street committee Thursday night.

Mr. Coleman, councilman for the Fifth ward, and living on Oliver street, states that this earth was shoveled in without any tamping whatever. He is of the opinion that all trenches made in paved streets should be refilled with sand.

In justice to the board of gas trustees, it is proper to say that none of these wrongs have been committed with their consent. They are interested in keeping the streets in good condition, and appear anxious that all pavements should be properly replaced. In fact, their contract with the parties who are laying the pipe specifies that when a trench is filled the earth shall be tamped with a 50-pound rammer and the pavement replaced in accordance with all ordinances of the city relating to this matter.

This is all well enough, but the fact remains that this contract has not been lived up to in the several instances mentioned above. The board of trustees, general manager and superintendent, with their force of inspectors, have somehow failed to make the contractors toe the mark. It is very evident that something is radically wrong and something besides mere resolutions passed by the trustees should be done to prevent the further mutilation of paved streets. Pipes are now being laid all over the city and this action should be taken immediately.

In the first form of contract under which piping was done for the board it was specified that pavements should be relaid to the satisfaction of the city civil engineer. Mr. Wickenden, however, declined to assume this responsibility and this clause has been omitted from the new form of contract. In speaking of the matter, Mr. Wickenden said: "The first notice I had that the gas trustees wanted me to inspect the pavements relaid over their trenches, was one day this spring when a sub-contractor came into my office and wanted me to go and inspect some paving. At first I thought he had mistaken the place, but when he told me of the provision in the contract, that the work was to be done to my satisfaction, I refused to have anything to do with it. Mr. Tobey, who was then manager, came to me afterwards and I explained the matter to him. My department already has all the work it can attend to, and with my present force it would be impossible for me to inspect all these pavings. Besides this, I don't think it is proper for gas trustees to ask me to inspect the pavements torn up for their trenches. I have no control over the work or its direction, nor am I consulted about anything they do."

After the pavement has been replaced, it is no time to inspect it anyway. There are many things under the surface that should be looked after, and when the work is completed it is impossible to tell whether it has been properly done or not. Several of the streets have been badly damaged by the pipe line contractors, but I don't know what can be done about it. In my opinion the organization of their force is defective, and they should have a better system for watching and inspecting the work. It is always necessary to keep a close eye on contractors for any public improvement on the work will be slighted."

Mr. Backus, of the board of gas trustees, is of the opinion that the board has made a great mistake in allowing these pavements to be ruined and wants something done at once. "All of the trenches in paved streets should be filled with sand," said he; "this can be settled solidly with water and tamping, so that the paving can be replaced as good as before. It will cost the city considerably more but I believe it will be a saving in the long run, for otherwise the pavements will settle and then it will be necessary to replace them."

The board has given Superintendent O'Herrin strict orders to see that the earth around pipes is thoroughly packed hereafter, and this will partially overcome the trouble, but it will take close watching to see that this is done.

President Parsons states that on some of this work the trustees are holding back part of the money due the contractors and that the board has power to do this on all cases where the work is not properly done. If this is done it will protect the property owners to some extent.

THE HENNEPIN CANAL.

The Location of the West End Causing Trouble.

Washington, Aug. 15.—The matter of the location of the west end of the Illinois and Mississippi (Hennepin) canal is still being agitated. Yesterday there was received at the war department a long communication from a prominent lawyer at Rock Island, claiming that the canal was permanently located on the north side of Rock river before the appropriation of 1890, and that the location on the south side is an unreasonable and unauthorized change; and claiming that the south side location brings the western terminus of the canal on low ground, subject to large overflows and ice gorges, and difficult and expensive of access by railroad or teams, and that it is doubtful whether it is accessible by boats on the Mississippi river; while the north side location terminates at a natural harbor nearer the cities of Rock Island, Davenport and Moline, and accessible by land and by the Mississippi river.

AS BAD AS LUCAS COUNTY.

Some Interesting New York Politics.

A Big Row Stirred Up Among the Republicans Which Will Spread to Other Counties.

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The Twenty-seventh district senatorial convention is to be the most unique in state history, if to-day's county convention is any criterion.

The republicans to-day are divided among themselves, and the fact is peculiarly significant because this is the county of the Collector of the Port of New York Fassett and Gov. Hill.

At Horseheads to-day, where the Chemung county convention was held to name delegates to the state and senatorial conventions, 186 delegates were expected to be in their seats. Contests, however, are made in 108 cases, and these were divided up as follows:

Fassett faction 42, Flood faction 65. The fact that Mr. Fassett had been made collector seemed rather to strengthen than to diminish the fight which originated some years ago when Mr. Fassett supported Levi P. Morton for senator as against the choice of then Assemblyman Van Duzer, who supported Mr. Evarts. The widening of the breach to-day means a direct fight against Mr. Thomas C. Platt's influence and Mr. Fassett's proposed senatorial candidate, Charles Ball, a clerk of the senate last year.

Mr. Fassett, Gov. Hill and his followers, assert that the opposing republicans are friends of Gov. Hill's, and that the split is caused in the hope of obtaining a democratic senator from this district. The Evening Star, a penny independent newspaper of Elmira, prints an open letter from ex-Assemblyman Van Duzer in which he accuses Collector Fassett of trying to defeat him in 1884 at the instance of Thomas Platt and of swinging over from Evarts to Morton at Platt's suggestion after promising to support Evarts for U. S. senator.

The letter, which contains over 1,000 words, claims that Mr. Fassett is trying to make a deal with democrats to get the county.

Mr. Van Duzer was seen this morning by a United Press reporter. He said:

"The letter is in answer to an open letter sent to me in which Collector Fassett admits that he defeated the renomination of Congressman Flood because Flood declined to let him name the postmaster. Mr. Flood is determined to test Fassett's power and if he attempts to run the convention he will [illegible] and hold one of our own. We are averse to a split this fall, but we do not propose that Collector Fassett shall run the place for Tom Platt."

Congressman Flood, who is leading the opposition, said: "If I had been nominated I would have been re-elected as it was Mr. Fassett succeeded in a democrat. We do not propose to have any deals with democrats. The statement that we are waging this fight by order of Gov. Hill is false. It is decidedly more probable that Collector Fassett is in league with the democrats than we."

Postmaster Flood also spoke against Mr. Fassett and said that the republicans of the district were trying to show the people of the state that they could not be controlled by Mr. Platt.

ESCAPED THROUGH WINDOW

A Drummer Who Found Business Brisk.

While Out Working Up Trade He Overtakes His Wife, who Was On An Eloping Tour.

Warren, O., August 15.—John C. Moore, a resident of that city and traveling for a Cincinnati buggy company, put up at the Crescent Hotel here last night, to look up trade, and discovered his wife stopping there with Forest Hinkston, registered as Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Moore, of Akron.

Moore tried to pull a gun on Hinkston as the latter ran upstairs to avoid him, and afterward obtained warrants for the arrest of the pair. Hotel exits were watched, but when the officers appeared to make the arrests the elopers were found to have escaped through a second story window, leaving all their baggage and possessions.

They then hired a fast team and got out of town ahead of the officers, the rig being driven back from Bristol by a boy to-day. Mrs. Moore is an attractive blonde, and met Hinkston at Burton, where both formerly resided.

BREAKING IN NORTHERNERS.

Youths Who Were Unaccustomed to the Usages of Southern Society.

"In New Orleans formerly," said a lady from Louisiana who accompanied the congressional party that visited Detroit a short time ago to a Free Press reporter, "the old traditions of French society prevailed. Young women never went out in the street before they were 16 years old without an escort. They never went without their mothers to the theater nor riding, nor were they allowed to sit with young men in the parlor unless their mothers were present. I remember a young fellow from Baltimore invited a young woman to the opera. She said she would be most happy to go. When he came in a carriage her father and mother came down stairs and got into the carriage with her. He was surprised, but supposed they were going on their own account. On arriving at the theater he found that they did not intend to pay for their tickets, and he had not money enough. Luckily he saw a friend from whom he borrowed, but you can imagine his mortification at being caught in such a scrape. He invited no more young women to the opera. He couldn't afford to take the whole family. Another northern gentleman asked a young lady to ride and went around to the house with a horse and buggy. 'Where's your carriage?' asked the young woman. 'There it is,' said he. 'But that won't hold us all,' she exclaimed—'mamma and you and me!' So he had to go and get a carriage and a driver. As he had a salary of only $600 a year he found this sort of thing too expensive. Besides, he never got any fun out of it with the mother sitting by and listening to every word he said."

HUNTING FOR HIS WIFE

And the Hundred Dollars She Took.

G. W. Sampsell, of Fremont, Taking a Little Excursion Around the Neighboring Towns.

Tiffin, O., Aug. 15.—(Special)—G. W. Sampsell, a resident of Fremont, came to this city yesterday to find his wife, whom he declared had stolen $100 from him and eloped with a stranger.

He had traced the fugitives to this city, and was endeavoring to locate them definitely. He visited the various hotels, giving a minute description of the woman, and finally learned that the pair had registered at the Empire house the previous evening as Mr. Miller and wife, of Sandusky, and had remained all night, leaving on the morning train northward on the "Big Four," presumably for the metropolis of Erie county.

He did not express any special anxiety to get back the woman but he did want to recover that $100, and also he desired to get his hands on the man in whose company she was.

Sampsell left on the afternoon train for Sandusky, declaring that the trip thither was the only beginning of a journey that he would not abandon without success if it carried him around the world.

An unusual sporting event for this section is on the program of Sunday exercises at Riverview, a suburban resort on the Sandusky river south of the city. It is a rowing match between Telghman Ward and J. F. Jackson, two well-known young men of this city of sporting proclivities. The purse is $50, but as each contestant has a host of friends, it is likely that considerable money will change hands.

WAIT TILL HE GETS OLDER.

A Little Boy Who Eats Onions to Get Ahead of the Ladies.

Down at Nantucket beach they tell this story, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. When Gov. Hill visited that place recently he was received with quite an ovation from the assembled natives and summer boarders, who gathered on the beach to receive him as he stepped from the small boat that carried him from the yacht Fra Diavolo.

Among those congregated on the beach was the Rodgers family, of this city. The senior Rodgers is a prominent lawyer. The next conspicuous member of the family, besides the mother, is their son Tudor. This boy is a child of 4 years. If a vote were taken in this big city as to who was the most beautiful child it is conceded by those who know that this boy would get the prize. No one appreciates this fact more than the women. The child is a constant object of their admiration, and if it is possible to get him within arm's reach they are bound to secure a kiss from him, and the child has become heartily sick of it. When Gov. Hill stepped on shore little Tudor very naturaly became an object of his admiration, and the governor naturally wanted to kiss the child; but upon his attempt to do so the boy drew back and emphatically refused to be kissed.

The governor was rather amazed at this, but to humor the child said to him: "But, my little man, if you refuse to kiss me, what do you do when the ladies want to kiss you?"

Quick as a wink the boy replied:

"I eat onions!"

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head One Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using them his head was a solid sore from the crown to the eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up, and had to keep mittens on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in anyway get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

THE FOSSIL RAINDROPS.

Over the quarry the children went rambling,
Hunting for stones to skip,
Into the clefts and the crevices scrambling,
Searching the quarrymen's chip.

Sweet were their voices, and gay was their laughter,
That holiday afternoon,
One tumbled down, and the rest tumbled after,
All of them singing one tune.

Here was a stone would skip like a bubble,
Once were it loosed from its place—
See what strange lines, all aslant, all atrouble,
Covered over its face.

For a half moment their wonder is smitten,
Nor divine they at all
That soft earth it was when those slant lines were written
By the rain's gusty fall.

Nor guess they, while pausing to look at it plainly,
The least in the world perplexed:
That the page which old Merlin studied vainly
Had never such wizard text.

Only a stone o'er the placid pool throwing.
Ah—but it told them, though,
How the rain was falling, the wind was blowing,
Ten thousand years ago.

A hitherto obscure Breton bard, whose humble home is not far from the scenes of the famous "lays" of ancient Brittany, which are numbered among the earliest of the modern metrical romances, has determined, it seems, to redeem the language of the Gaul from the imputation of having produced the mighty epic. His name is Jacques le Fraisne, and he has chosen Napoleon's career as his theme, concluding with the battle of Waterloo. Poetic effect, it seems to M. le Fraisne, requires Napoleon to die on the field by the sword of Wellington, and a syndicate writer who has discovered him says the bard hasn't decided yet whether to "swing" history his way or not.

Cut flowers are constantly sent through the mails, but seldom in such a fashion as to preserve their bloom and freshness. To effect this pack in a light wooden box, not using cardboard, line the box with wadding or cotton batting, laying over this a sheet of tissue paper; then lay the flowers, not on top of each other, but in rows side by side, the blossoms of each row on the stems of their neighbors; pack closely, otherwise the flowers will be displaced and injured in the journey. Before packing, they should stand in water for several hours in order to absorb moisture enough to keep them from withering. It is not well to sprinkle them too heavily after they are in the box, for without air this is likely to produce mildew.

"Elmwood," the Cambridge home of James Russell Lowell's boyhood and mature years, is one of the most attractive houses in that city of picturesque homes. It stands at the very entrance of New England's famous cemetery, Mount Auburn, where the poet will probably be buried, and the view from its windows over the meadows across the Charles river on a June or October day is unsurpassed in beauty. It is there that one appreciates the rare days in June that Mr. Lowell embalmed in verse. During Mr. Lowell's prolonged residence abroad the house was occupied by Ole Bull, the violinist.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Being Enjoyed To-Day by the Neuhausel Bros.

From a Small and Unpretentious Beginning, the Firm Has Reached a Mammoth Trade.

Neuhausel Brothers, the well-known dry goods firm, are to-day celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the commencement of their most successful business enterprise. For a quarter of a century they have been engaged in one business in Toledo, and none have a better right to celebrate than they.

On August 15, 1866, Nicholas and Martin Neuhausel opened a dry goods store in one-half of the room next south of where their present mammoth establishment was located. Their stock comprised less than $3,000 worth of goods, and the other half of the store was occupied by a boot and shoe firm. The personal popularity of the Neuhausels, and their splendid business capacity soon asserted itself, however, and in less than two years they were obliged to have more room to accommodate their increased stock and so moved into the room next door, which afterwards made a third of their present store. In the early years of the business, two other brothers, George and John, were taken into the firm, and together the four brothers have prospered as it has been the fortune of but few families to do. They have worked in unity, each one having his own department to attend to, and so their business has steadily increased until now they have one of the first and finest stores of its kind in the west. They made no sudden jump into prosperity, neither have they experienced any serious reverses, but have grown up steadily with the city of which they have been pioneers. The Neuhausel family came here in '57, and have lived here ever since.

A few years after their first move they were obliged to enlarge, and so added to their store the room next to it. Then again they added another adjoining store to their establishment, and so occupied the whole of the first floor of the block in which the People's theater was formerly located.

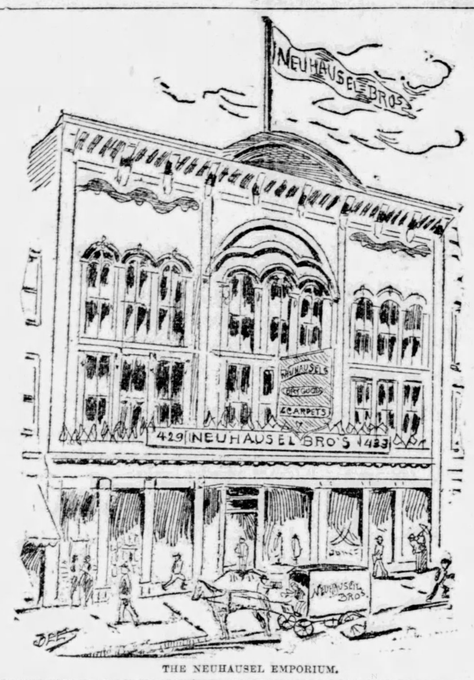
Next they were obliged to use the basement for their continually enlarging stock, and so they continued until about two years ago when the theater was moved and they leased the whole of the four floors of the block. Then occurred a transformation scene in reality equal to any done in tinsel on the stage.

Floors were put in and the great room which had been such a popular resort for the play goers was changed to an immense dry goods and carpet establishment, filled with first-class goods, and it soon became as popular a business center as it had before been for pleasure. Still business keeps increasing, and now even with their commodious rooms and army of clerks, numbering nearly 100, the Messrs. Neuhausel can hardly take care of their customers.

This summer more changes are being made, and for several weeks past workmen have been busy upon the building, and when they finish it will have the finest front in the city.

The entrances on the first floor have been changed so that there is now but one large central entrance flanked by eight great plate glass windows. The carpet department has also been changed from the third floor, where it occupied one third of the room, to the fourth floor, which is now entirely devoted to this department. The stock of carpets has not only been enlarged, but it includes every grade from the finest to the lowest, and these goods are shown in a room 60x100 feet in size, without a pillar or post.

In this connection it is also appropriate to mention the view to be had from the fourth floor of this establishment. Here the visitor standing in the rear end of the room can look down the great rotunda upon a scene of life, beauty and business that is not equalled in any other establishment in the city. This picture is alone worth a visit to the store, and one cannot help but wishing for the Messrs. Neuhausel a continuation of their business as successful as they have had for the past quarter of a century.



THE NEUHAUSEL EMPORIUM.

FATED TO DIE BY A FALL.

Acrobat Hanlon's Accidents and Awful Death.

Martin Julian, the Dead Man's Friend, Describes the Hanlon's Apparatus and the Cause of the Fatal Accident—The Dead Man's Real Name Was Mara.

"Hanlon was fated to die that way. He took only the chances of accident and violent death which all take who become professional aerial gymnasts, but I must say he was singularly unlucky during the past two years."

The young man who uttered these words is the famous acrobat, contortionist and aerial gymnast, Martin Julian, who is well known to the people of this city as one of "The Julians," brother and sister, whose remarkable performances have brought them prominently into public notice.

He is but 20 years of age. He began when little more than an infant his career in that arena where strength, agility and nerve take on their greatest commercial value. In fact, he was so young when he turned his initial professional flip-flap or somersault, that he cannot remember his first public appearance.

He comes of a family who have been conspicuous in the theatrical world for several generations. His mother, Mme. Aimee Julian, now retired, was once the most finished and refined woman acrobat and contortionist in the world. She was widely known in Europe, Australia and America for her grace and skill as an artist and for her beauty of face and figure. Ten years ago she withdrew from professional life. To-day her children, Rose and Martin, entertain the same way the children of her old patrons.

Mr. Julian made the above quoted remarks to a member of The Press staff while sitting in his dressing room at Tony Pastor's theater waiting for his "call to go on" with his sister Rose.

No Fault of Hanlon.

The conversation between him and the writer had drifted to accidents to persons in his line of work. He was speaking of the tragic death of William Hanlon of the Hanlon Brothers, the celebrated aerial gymnasts, which occurred in Forepaugh's circus in Clinton, O., July 13.

This unfortunate man fell from the aerial rigging used by himself and associates. He struck on the inside edge of the ring bank. His neck was broken. He died instantly.

The same Mr. Hanlon fell while playing in the Academy of Music last season and sustained almost fatal injuries. He recovered only after quite a long course of nursing in Bellevue hospital.

Mr. Julian, whose long experience as an aerial gymnast and acrobat in a circus and on the stage makes him a reliable authority, was asked to describe the apparatus used by the Hanlons and to state to what the misfortunes of the dead artist should be rightly attributed.

"Hanlon's fall in the Academy of Music last season and the fall which resulted fatally to him at Clinton, Ohio, cannot be attributed to carelessness on his part," the young acrobat said. "In both instances the accidents to him were the result of a part of the peculiar apparatus used by the Hanlons flying way. This is something which is likely to happen to anyone, no matter how cautious he may be.

Both Accidents Very Similar.

"The singular feature of these accidents is that the break occurred both times in practically the same part of the rigging, although the surroundings were different.

"You well know," he said, "that their rigging consisted of three sets of 'drops' from the ceiling. By 'drops' I mean wire ropes. To the two end sets of these 'drops' were attached steel rods. To the center 'drops' was attached an oak horizontal bar. On this bar Wm. Hanlon performed his part of the feats which made the team so celebrated.

"The steel rods and the oak horizontal bar were 'guyed' by wire ropes running horizontally from each to the other rod next it, and also by four very strong wire ropes, running obliquely to the floor on both sides.

"These horizontal and oblique 'guys' made the steel rods and the oak horizontal bar as steady as a rock, each of the wire ropes being stretched to its highest tension by a strong manilla rope and triple running blocks.

"To each of the end steel rods was attached a swinging trapeze, and let down from the ceiling—suspended slightly above the level of the trapeze bar—as far from the steel rods as the swing of the trapezes rendered possible, were two aerial perches, if I may express myself that way, used by the two brothers who confined themselves to trapeze acts. These suspended perches were 'guyed' with wire ropes running obliquely from the four corners in such a way as to make them absolutely steady.

The Apparatus Well Constructed.

"As a measure of safety, and to comply with the law of New York, they had a net rigged up running the entire length of the the auditorium of the Academy of Music. This net was quite wide and 'guyed' by strong manilla ropes running through triple blocks made fast to heavy iron rings screwed into the beams of the flooring.

"A person unacquinted with the work of an aerial gymnast and aerial rigging of the character I have described, can have no conception of the detail and difficulty attending its proper erection. It is a two days' job to put up the Hanlons' apparatus as it appeared in the Academy of Music.

"While two brothers confined themselves to swinging trapeze acts, the unfortunate Wm. Hanlon did remarkably difficult feats on his aerial horizontal bar. He performed many tricks which would 'phase' the best performers who have their horizontal bars set up in an ordinary way on the stage. When it is considered that he performed their best tricks on a bar always suspended from thirty to sixty feet in the air, according to the size of the theater in which he played, and also many perilous original acts, it will be admitted that his nerve and skill as an athlete cannot be too highly praised.

"The evening of the accident to him in the Academy of Music he went through his tricks in the usual routine. One set ended with what we term the 'giant swing'—that is grasping the bar with both hands and swinging rapidly about it at arm's length.

"He had made two or three turns when the audience were horrified to see him go flying headlong through the air. The drop to the left, facing the stage, parted with a loud snap about two inches above the ring in which the oak horizontal bar was set.

Lost Control of Himself.

"The ring did not slip off the end of the horizontal bar and the result of the break in the 'drop' was but to let it suddenly fall about 12 inches. This broke Hanlon's grip and he flew through the air as if thrown from a catapult. The bar swerving from its exact horizontal position as he was swinging gave him a sideward impetus, which robbed him of that control of himself in falling which aerial gymnasts acquire by careful training and long practice.

"A trapeze artist may slip, or miss a grip in passing from one trapeze to another, but in such instances it is quite unusual to meet with an accident, for such mishaps are anticipated in training for this line of work, and skill in making a safe fall is just as much a part of the technique of the work as the most difficult trick. It probably is not appreciated by the public that to land on your head in a net will break your neck as surely as it will if you so strike on a floor or on the ground.

"Hanlon struck on the upper part of his right leg on one of the heavy blocks of one of the side 'guys' of the net, bounded off like a rubber ball, and came down on his head and shoulders on the backs of two orchestra chairs with a tremendous crash.

"He was terribly injured. I left him as he went on for his act not 20 minutes before the accident, and was standing at the stage door when a boy ran out to call an ambulance. He said one of the Hanlons had fallen and had been killed. I reached the stage as he was brought on and helped carry him to his dressing room. His first words when he came to himself were—

"Well, Mart, I have got it this time, surely."

"At his brothers' request I went to Bellevue in the ambulance in which he was carried to that hospital, and helped the doctors get his costume off. He had sustained a terrible gash across his face running into his scalp. The papers said his scalp was nearly torn off; but this was not so. Striking the block of the net on his leg saved his life in all probability. When we reached the hospital it was swollen to an almost inconceivable size. It seemed as if the skin would burst.

The Circus Rigging.

"The doctors at Bellevue showed him every attention, and after a time he fully recovered from these injuries and was as well and as nervy as ever.

"The aerial rigging which the Hanlons used in Forepaugh's circus differed from that set up in the academy of music only in method of construction.

"In the circus," said the acrobat, "a crane was swung to the center pole just below the lights. It was the breaking of this crane that cost Hanlon his life. This crane was 'guyed' stiff by wire ropes running obliquely to blocks attached to pins driven into the ground. To this crane Hanlon's horizontal bar was attached by 'drops.' At equal distances both sides of the center pole, heavy poles and crossbars were set up and held in place by wire ropes. To the crossbars on these poles the trapezes were hung. The center horizontal bar was held stationary by wire ropes running horizontally to the posts which held up the crossbars supporting the trapezes.

"In lieu of the suspended perches used in the academy of music they had pedestals in the shape of poles with a little stand on top. These were held in place by four wire ropes running from the four corners to the ground. Swinging from these pedestals the two brothers who make the trapeze their specialty, performed their feats.

"When the fatal accident occurred Hanlon was doing what is termed a forward planch't that is, he grasped the bar with both hands, and, swinging himself into a horizontal position, drew himself forward as far as possible.

The Crane Broke.

"While suspending himself in this position the crane broke about three or four inches from the eye bolts which ran through it at the end.

"This accident let one side of Hanlon's bar fall and threw him clear of the net. He landed on the right side of his neck on the inside edge of the ring bank. His neck was broken and he died instantly.

"His brothers say that he seemed to make no effort to save himself. It is quite probable that the instant he realized that another accident was upon him he remembered his terrible experience in the Academy of Music, lost his nerve and gave himself up as lost. You would be surprised to know what a lot of thinking one can do while taking a tumble of ten feet. Hanlon fell about fifteen feet.

"This is one of the many accidents to persons in my line of work which have come under my observation. There is no telling when any one in the business may meet with a fatal accident. The Hanlons always carefully scrutinized their ropes and bars, and in both cases of accident to William it cannot be said that the misfortune was attributable to anything but an undetectable weakness of some part of their apparatus. But it does seem as if he were fated to die as he did.

"When my sister Rose and myself worked with the Barnum show four years ago, I nearly lost my life in doing one of the easiest tricks in leaping and tumbling. I ran down the run, struck the springboard and flew through the air. I intended to do a double forward somersault and land on the big pad or bag. I miscalculated the throwing power of the springboard, which was new and stiff, and did not go as high in the air as I anticipated. I turned once all right, and was making my second turn when I was brought up with a bump.

Saved by a Thought.

"I landed on my forehead on the bag, and the instant I struck I realized that if my feet turned over to complete the second somersault I would break my neck. I cannot explain to you how I gauged the situation as I did. A drowning man sees all the events of his life in an instant, we are told, and I as quickly grasped the situation I was in. As my forehead struck I gave my legs a twist. I seemed to spin on my face and dropped off the pad on my hands and knees. I had saved my neck; but what a sight I was. I looked as if I had been monkeying with a buzz saw. One side of my face was completely skinned.

"I spoke to you a few minutes ago about the danger of falling into a net. You have noted, no doubt, that almost all aerial performers have a narrow strip of carpeting secured in the center, lengthwise.

"This is to save themselves from being bruised when striking the net. If the carpet were not used contact with each knot would prove as painful as if one were struck with a knotted rope. I have been black and blue from contact with these knots.

"A 'safe' fall into a net is made only by landing flat on one's back and grasping the meshes to prevent being thrown out on the rebound. To strike on one's feet is extremely dangerous. To strike on one's head means an accident.

"From what I have told you it will be clear that, take all the precautions one may, aerial gymnastics are extremely dangerous, and accidents are far too likely to happen.

"I have performed all kinds af feats, and have done an aerial act with my sister, but she will never take up this class of work again.

"The statement has been made, Mr. Julian, that the dead man was not one of the original Hanlons, but was merely a pupil of the Hanlon brothers. Is that true?"

"The name of the Hanlon who was killed was William Mara. The team consisted of Robert Hanlon (his real name), William Mara and a man whose Christian name is James. These men were 'professional' brothers, not brothers in the sense of the blood tie of relationship. They worked together 24 years, always playing under the title of 'Hanlon Brothers.' They being the only Hanlon Brothers, I do not see how Mara could have been merely a pupil, as has been stated. In Europe they combined with the Volters, two brothers, and were known as the Hanlon-Volter troupe. Robert and James have rejoined the Forepaugh circus in the west."—N. Y. Press.

THE GYPSY TENT.

Where shall we pitch our gypsy tent,
Our few brief days by pleasure lent?
Among the hills, beside the sea,
Beneath some hill-side pasture tree,
Or 'mid the fields with daisies fair?
Oh, choose at will; it matters not;
The loveliest spot
In summer days is—everywhere.

Dark pines in rifted ledges gray,
Wild roses wet with salt sea spray,
Pink sunsets in the mirroring lake,
The wild brook laughing in the brake,
The gray gull's flight, the clear voiced thrush,
Sweet singing in the greenwood's hush—
Which joy to snatch, what bliss to lose.
When each seems fairest, who can choose?

Then gypsy-tenting forth we'll fare,
But whither go it matters not;
The loveliest spot
In summer days waits—everywhere.
—Harper's Bazar.

REST.

Mother, I see you with your nursery light,
Leading your babies, all in white,
Christ, the Good Shepherd, carries mine to-night,
And that is best.

I cannot help tears when I see them twine
Their fingers in yours, and their bright curls shine
On your warm breast:
But the Savior's is purer than yours or mine—
He can love best.

You tremble each hour because your arms
Are weak; your heart is wrung with alarms,
And sore oppress;
My darlings are safe out of reach of harms,
And that is best.

You know over yours may hang even now
Pain and disease, whose fulfilling slow
Naught can arrest;
Mine in God's gardens run to and fro,
And that is best.

You know that of yours your feeblest one
And dearest may live long years alone,
Mine are cherished of saints around God's throne.
And that is best.

You must dread for yours the crime that sears,
Dark guilt unwashed by repentant tears,
And unconfessed;
Mine entered spotless on eternal years,
Oh, how much the best!

But grief is selfish: I cannot see
Always why I should so stricken be
More than the rest;
But I know that, as well as them, for me
God did the best.
—Helen Hunt Jackson.

Many thanks to the member of the Household who responded promptly to the request for some information about lady cyclists. What she writes is in every way an argument in favor of young women and girls indulging in this innocent and health-giving exercise. Shall we not hear from others?

Chat wants to say one word in warning to girl cyclists: Girls, whatever you do, don't chew gum while you are on a wheel. We have often wondered where gum-chewing looked worse, whether in church, at a funeral, or in a theater where grand opera was being played. We know now. Gum chewing looks worst when a young lady is high in air on a wheel, flying along a street observed of all observers, and the faster she works the pedals the faster she works her jaw. Don't, girls, don't do it.

Chat saw a pretty cycling costume the other day. A skirt of soft grey serge, trimmed with military braid to match; plain in front, in small pleats on side and back; in length coming to boot tops. Bodice of fine grey flannel, sleeves slightly full, with deep cuffs, and a high collar that lay down, but could be turned up to keep sun or rain off the back of neck. Grey cloth cap, with water-proof drapery that can be turned up in fair weather, and turned down and fastened under the chin, forming a hood, in a rain. The dress skirt was faced with mackintosh, from which mud could be wiped off.

BABY IN VARIOUS LANDS.

In Spain the infant's face is swept with a pine tree bough to bring good luck.

In Ireland a belt made of woman's hair is placed about a child to keep harm away.

Garlic, salt, bread and steak are put into the cradle of a new born babe in Holland.

In Scotland it is said that to rock the empty cradle will insure the coming of occupants for it.

The Grecian mother, before putting her child in its cradle, turns three times around before the fire, while singing her favorite song, to ward off evil spirits.

Welch mothers put a pair of tongs or a knife in the cradle to insure the safety of their children; the knife is also used for the same purpose in some parts of England.

The London mother places a book under the head of each new-born infant, that it may be quick at reading, and puts money into its first bath to guarantee its future wealth.

The Turkish mother loads her child with amulets as soon as it is born, and a small bit of mud, well steeped in hot water, prepared by previous charms, is stuck on its forehead.

At the birth of a child in lower Brittany the neighboring women take it in charge, wash it, crack its joints and rub its head with oil to solder the cranium bones. It is then wrapped in a tight bundle, and its lips are anointed with brandy to make it a full Briton.

In America the child is handed over to a nurse, with instructions to "raise it on the bottle."—Good Housekeeping.

Against the last generalization we protest. The baby in the real American household is king, and before his rattle all the rest bow down; at his slightest squall all fly to his assistance. The American mother does not neglect her babe, unless she is too poor to give it the time she must give to toil. Nor does she hand it over to a nurse altogether, if she be rich, unless she be also exceptionally empty-headed and cold-hearted.

BICYCLE RIDING.

The Chicago Evening Post of August 10 says: "Dr. H. W. Baldwin and his newly-made bride reached the Grand Pacific hotel last night, completing a remarkable honeymoon. Since July 6, when they were married at their home in Norwalk, Ohio, they have been touring the country on their "safety" bicycles. In all the happy couple have ridden nearly nine hundred miles in thirty-two days.

Bicycle riding is becoming so popular that the papers constantly contain notices like the above, and when we look back two or three years and see how few ladies rode we must give them credit for overcoming many prejudices against their riding. Now we find very few who object to seeing a woman on a wheel and they are often the ones who make the most enthusiastic of riders when they learn to use a wheel. Bicycle riding is easily learned, one lesson a day for a week being all that many require. In Chicago there are several schools connected with the bicycle show-rooms, where purchasers of wheels are taught to ride free of charge.

It is better not to overdo the riding at first as the muscles need to become hardened before it is safe to take a long ride. Many ladies ride 30 miles a day the first season they ride, without feeling any ill effects from the exercise. Start out at 5 o'clock on a hot summer day taking a hammock, something to read and eat, and go into the country ten or fifteen miles until you find a cool shady spot, put up your hammock and enjoy yourself until the close of the day and then ride home. Do not go alone, but take congenial company and I think you will agree with me in saying you have spent a delightful day. Many places that cannot be reached with cars and that are awkward to reach with a carriage have good roads for cycling and many pleasant spots can be visited that are never seen in any other way.

In selecting a wheel take one made by a reputable manufacturer who will guarantee his wheel and if there are any imperfections he will remedy the trouble without charge. Some of the wheels sold for $60 and $100 seem to give as good satisfaction on good roads as the $135 ones, but on bad roads it takes a very strong wheel to stand the hard usage it receives.

Dresses for wheels should not be very full, plain and made of woolen lined with heavy lining, like bed ticking, so they will not blow up. No skirts are worn under them and they should be about an inch from the ground when the wearer is standing. Low shoes are more comfortable than high ones. Waists should be well fitted and made with a loose or full sleeve. White silk waists are worn with dark skirts here this summer but any kind of a thin waist, suitable for the street, can be used.

Bicycle riding is healthy exercise and can be indulged in by almost every one, and when I see the many ladies who are shut up all day in close offices going their wheels at night and looking so well I can find nothing too strong to say in favor of the habit. NELLIE WILLEY.

THE VINE THEORY.

My husband is very fond of beans, and, as I was out one day putting up the poles, I thought how often he had compared women to vines, and men to the supports on which they climb. As he is very fond of poetry, too, and the next day was our wedding anniversary, I thought how nice it would be to surprise him with a pretty little poem about it. So I went into the house and began to write. But I want to tell you what trouble I got into before I finished. Here is what I wrote:

"As the vine unto the tree is,
So unto the man is woman;
He the strength which doth support her,
She the beauty which adorns him.
In the gentle, blushing springtime
See the tender vine uprising
From the warm, protecting bosom
Of the earth, her gentle mother!
Timidly she rises upward;
Suddenly she feels her weakness,
Throws aloft her clinging tendrils,
Stretches out her slender fingers,
Till she finds some steady oak tree.
And her gentle arms entwine it."

Now here came my first difficulty. I was writing to please John, and of course I had us in my mind all the time, and you cannot imagine how funny and shocking it seemed when I began to tell about John standing still there like a tree, and of my going to him and stretching out my arms, instead of—well—it was so funny that I laughed till the tears rolled down my cheeks. But I never saw a tree go out of its way after a vine, so I had to let it go.

"Straightway then she rises upwards,
Seeks the heights he has attained to;
In a few short weeks she reaches
Heights of more than twice her stature,
Twines about his topmost branches.
Throws her longing tendrils upwards,
Finds—that her support has failed her!
Finds—that if she mounts still higher
She must leave his sheltering arms;
Then, with gentle woman's pity,
Seeing that he cannot follow,
Leaves the goal of her ambition
Unattained, and, backward turning,
Falls again to seek his level."

I did not like the sound of those last lines, but they were true of the vine, and I couldn't help it. So I thought I would make up for them by some really pretty lines about him supporting her in the rude blast of affliction. There was a strong wind blowing about this time, so I thought I would go out and look at the bean-vines, and the poles would figure as the trees, and perhaps I could get an inspiration from them. There were two rows, one in which the vines were twined all about the poles, and another in which the poles had just been set out and the vines had not yet begun to cling. Well, they were struggling beautifully with the wind, and the harder it blew, the tighter the vines seemed to cling to the poles; and I had just begun to feel the inspiration creeping over me, when there came a sudden gust of wind, and blew over every single one of the poles which didn't have vines on them, and left the others standing as straight as ever! That just spoiled it all; for after that, no matter how I looked at them, those vines always would seem to be holding up the poles instead of the poles holding up the vines. I went into the house disgusted, and made up my mind that there was no use in trying to write a poem about it, and that there must be something wrong with the vine theory; though I wouldn't have John know it for the world; he's so fond of it, you know, and I don't suppose I should ever have discovered it if I hadn't tried to write a poem about it.—Yellow Ribbon Speaker.

EDUCATED WOMEN WHO WORK

The most marked social change wrought in our time is the extraordinary increase in the number of educated women who voluntarily earn their living by work. As history shall look back and weigh our time it will pretty surely regard this change as the happiest of all that we have made. The educated mind needs not only occupation, but the obligation of occupation.

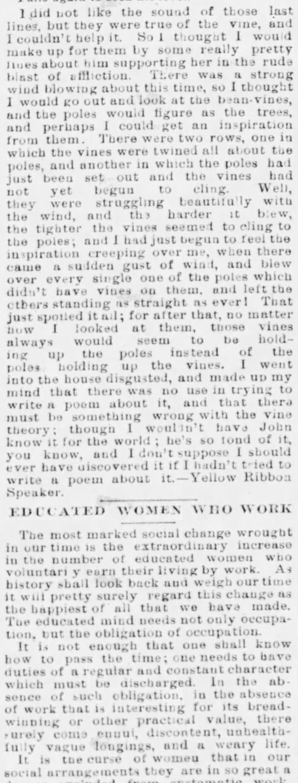
It is not enough that one shall know how to pass the time; one needs to have duties of a regular and constant character which must be discharged. In the absence of such obligation, in the absence of work that is interesting for its bread-winning or other practical value, there surely come ennui, discontent, unhealthfully vague longings, and a weary life.

It is the curse of women that in our social arrangements they are in so great a degree excluded from systematic work. The very tenderness of our care for them has been and is an affliction to them. Their lives are arranged upon the assumption that they are to be idlers, or at least that their work is to be of an irregular and inconsequent sort, and a great sum of human suffering, immeasurable but omnipresent, is the consequence.

The trouble is that we have educated our women into an intellectual activity that demands earnest occupation, and have at the same time continued to maintain social arrangements and social prejudices that were born of a time when women were educated only to be the playthings of men, the companions of their relaxation, not of their endeavor.

Our women are of larger mental and moral mould than were those of earlier times, and their needs are larger. Among them is the need of opportunity to use their faculties to the full measure, and they are beginning to find out the fact. It is the beginning of a revolution from which the world will greatly profit.—New York World.

A DRESS FOR HOME WEAR.



We live by our ideals. Individually they may fall into the dust of disappointment, and the flower of poetic fancy may wither away into the dry grass of disillusion. Nevertheless, the race goes on cherishing its ideals, without which, indeed, life would become too hard and sordid for us all. And one of the ideals in all Western countries is the home. Home means peace. It means, too, love. Perhaps the two are synonymous.

THE SCRAP BASKET.

The great essentials of the ideal home are constant love, confidence, devotion, unselfishness, willingness to spend and be spent in the services of one another. The ideal home is one where the children shall say, "When we marry and have homes of our own, we wish to love and be loved as our father and mother love each other." It is where the sons are taught respect for all women, by the deference and kindness of their father to their mother; it is where daughters learn by mother's patient example how beautiful a thing wifely and motherly affection is; learn the beauty of daily unselfish devotion to the good of all. It is where the atmosphere of love and kindness is so all-pervading that it softens every privation, ennobles every humble duty, stimulates constantly all noble and unselfish aims.

Thick on the drooping branches
The leaves were shining green,
With the downy, crimson peaches
All glowing in between.
With bare white arms uplifted,
In every motion grace,
Gleaming tresses floating
Around her winsome face;
With dainty rounded ankles
That her kirtle barely reaches,
A witching little maiden
Stood tiptoe, picking peaches.

I've danced with courtly ladies
Where wealth and beauty met,
And thrilled at langu'd glances
From blonde and fair brunette;
I've stemmed the foaming breakers
With belles at all the beaches,
But this sweet maid pinched out my heart
As she plucked the glowing peaches.

An exchange contains the following iconoclastic wail: "The lady who will set the fashion of doing away with the piano lamps, pictures on easels, with the everlasting scarf on top, and rickety tables in the middle of the floor, with marble statuettes underneath glass covers, will be a benefactor to the race."

Home-made furniture is rarely successful and more rarely economical. Occasionally a husband or wife has a gift at carpentry, and can do wonders. If the young husband can build furniture so well that he would not hesitate to offer to sell it, with a fair likelihood of getting a purchaser, let him build, and be can for his home. It will be good, and of as much comfort to the household as the dainty needlework his wife may have the skill to fashion. But let the ordinary wielder of the hammer, saw and plane beware. The materials used will usually cost have enough or more to buy the finished article at a reliable shop, says a writer in Harper's Bazar. After the furniture is done, and money, time and strength have been devoted to it, what is the usual result? A "toggled-up" article that is rarely comfortable, generally cumbersome, and wi l come to pieces within a year. A chair made out of a barrel is always a barrel, even though covered with raw silk and adorned with velours squares. Far better an honest cane-seated rocker than such a hypocritical, vulgar makeshift.

Mr. Baring-Gould in his latest book gives an anecdote of an old lady in his own West country, who, when exhorted by the parson to remember on her death-bed her shortcomings, replied, "I have never spared myself, heaven knows! I have worked hard,—harder than any slave. There are five large jars of last year's wortuleberry jam still unopened in the store-room. I can die happy, when I have to die, and not a sheet unhemmed, and we have twenty-four."

Learn to live and live to learn,
Ignorance like fire doth burn,
Little tasks make large return.

We should all be vain enough to wish to win the good opinion of others, for that will lead us to make ourselves agreeable and useful, which is much more desirable in society than that we should be ill natured and hurtful.—Hugo O. Pentecost.

I had no time to hate, because
The grave would hinder me,
And I e was not so ample I
Could finish enmity.

He told his son to milk the cows, feed the horses, slop the pigs, hunt the eggs, feed the calves, catch the colt and put him in the stable, cut plenty of wood, split kindlings, stir the milk, put fresh water in the creamery after supper, and to be sure and study his lessons before he went to bed. Then he hurried off to the club to take a leading part in the question, "How to Keep Boys on the Farm."

When gloves are laid away in a box they should be wrapped in paraffine tissue paper. Never lay gloves together, clean and soiled.

THE USEFUL LEMON.

Next to the apple (possibly even not excepting the apple), the lemon is the most useful of all fruits either home or foreign. It is supposed to be a native of Northern India and to have been brought into Europe at the time of the crusades. It is cultivated most extensively in those countries of Southern Europe, bordering on the Mediterranean, also to a great extent in Brazil, where, it is said, the flesh of the cattle pasturing in the woods smells very strong of lemons from eating the fallen fruit. The lemon tree is very productive, more so than the orange, and enormous quantities of the fruit are exported to those countries in which it cannot be made to grow. Like the orange, it is a tropical or subtropical fruit, and like it, belongs to the citron family, as also does the lime which many persons erroneously suppose are only small lemons.

Lemon juice, which is very sour, is invaluable in fevers, especially in those that are malignant and even pestilential. During the great plague in London, it was regarded as one of their most efficient remedies. It certainly cools the blood, allays thirst, and checks nausea and vomiting. It is strengthening to the stomach, exciting its action and so aiding digestion. It is also considered a cure for rheumatism and a preventive of scurvy. For this reason lemons form an important part of all ship's stores. Lemons sliced and sprinkled with sugar, or baked and eaten with sugar or molasses, are excellent for sore throat, hoarseness and pressure on the lungs. A hot lemonade taken at bed time is one of the best cures for a cold.—Table Talk for August.

COOKING AS AN ART.

"But no fault do I find, for she's loving and kind.
And when bachelorship I forsook
'Twas to wed a sweet wife and companion for life,
It wasn't to marry a cook."

Those are the last of several stanzas by the poet of the New York Press, after dilating in many here unquoted lines upon the utter ignorance of his wife on the simplest principles of cooking, and it was wise in the poor man to look cheerily on the situation; also to prevent dyspepsia threatened by his last meal her "fair hand" had prepared, to mount Pegasus for exercise. Well, poets will thrive on most any food, flinty biscuits or dew drops, but the truth of the proverb, that "the surest road to reach a husband's heart is by way of his stomach," will be vouched for by many of the dear ladies who, by painstaking with a favorite dish requiring skill as labor have received well deserved words of praise and no doubt a caress into the bargain from him whom to please is pleasure. At a temperature high in the nineties the theme on cooking may seem out of season, but standing in co-relation to the "hired girl," and for a while at least giving a rest to this exhausted subject, the topic may be pardonable even if only for the sake of diversion.

The article is not intended as a lesson on culinary matters nor will it touch on that mysterious compounding of food done in cheap boarding and eating houses where the price paid for meals guarantees neither expert help or the using of first class material. It may to some degree serve to show the many requirements included in the preparation of food in best style consisting of viands, vegetables, pastry and those other delicacies indispensible to a well appointed board in houses where cart blanc is given in regard to cost or expense to the cook.

It goes without question that substances used in elaborate cooking imperatively demand the best in market to attain favorable results. A poor cut of meat will give an unsavory roast; baking powder and milk alone will produce an unpalatable paste. Since in the sober matter of fact cooking no miracles occur, butter, eggs and fine flavorings and season, if handled with judgment and care, work charms.

Beside the above named substantials, to render the cook an artist, abstract qualities like in any other profession are imperative, those being natural adaptability and genuine enthusiasm for the occupation with intelligence and experience as their hand maids. It matters little how many lectures or cooking schools one attended, or the amount of theoretical knowledge amassed from cook books is in one's head it all goes for naught if practical experiments, at the beginning often times bad failures, are not resorted to.

Sundry dishes should be prepared by one's own hand from beginning to finish in the different ways in use noticing the best result of some mode—every loaf of bread or piece of pastry should be handled by the cook herself as in the last moment of their creation the trust in a deputy by the slightest inattention or carelessness will prove disastrous.

What caution and everlasting vigilance is required in the proper use of seasoning, the quantity for a certain number of persons, to determine the latter so as to avoid waste inexcusable in the houses of the wealthiest—and one of the cardinal virtues of the cook intrusted with the handling of expensive provisions.

One could enlarge beyond the space at command in the columns of our "Household," but one more remarkas to the duties of the cooks: After all, their work of range, and even is a triumph; the arrangement of the victuals on platters and plates to rejoice the eye of the epicure and coax the appetite of the despetic, is by no means the smallest part of his or her accomplishments; and is it to be wondered at that girls, between the ages of 16 and 20, hired as cooks, prove incompetent when it takes years of study and labor to learn what is so important in every well regulated household, how to cook.

KITCHEN CONFERENCE.

A RECIPE FOR A DAY.

Take a little dash of water cold
And a little leaven of prayer,
And a little bit of sunshine gold
Dissolved in the morning air.

Add to your meal some merriment
And a thought for kith and kin,
And then, as your prime ingredient,
A plenty of work thrown in.

But spice it all with the essence of love
And a little whiff of play.
Let a wise old book and a glance above
Complete the well-made day.

For rose water put the rose petals alone into a jar of sweet oil, and let them remain over a day well covered, then squeeze the flowers out into a cheese cloth and add more flowers to the same oil, repeating this daily. You will notice when the oil is sufficiently perfumed. Then add as much as you think best of alcohol, more than as much again. Bottle and shake every day for two weeks, when it will be ready to use.

Vinegar is better than water for moistening stove polish.

Two or three rose geranium leaves put in when making crab-apple jelly will give it a delicious flavor.

POTATOES BAKED IN ASHES.—Potatoes baked in ashes are delicious; nothing is needed but a pinch of salt to flavor them. The person who has never eaten a potato cooked in that way does not know what satisfying qualities there are in that vegetable. Among old-fashioned people in the country, who had an open fireplace or a "fire frame," it used to be quite a common occurrence to bake potatoes in the ashes, says Good Housekeeping. The good wife would clear a space between the andirons, brush the bricks clean with a turkey wing, kept in the corner for that purpose, put down a pile of potatoes and then on the hot ashes put them in a big mound, with live coals on top. When they were done (and she always knew just when), she would bring forward a wooden bag, and having raked them from their bed, put them in, give them a vigorous shaking to remove the ashes.

CHEESE JELLIED—Grate three ounces of Parmesan cheese, with two tablespoonfuls of thick cream, and mix with a table-spoonful of gelatine dissolved in a small teacup of water; when stiff, stir in the cheese, season with pepper, salt and mustard; fill little cases, grate cheese over the top, and set on ice to harden.

CHEESE STRAWS—Mix two ounces of butter, two of flour, two of bread crumbs, two of grated cheese and half a teaspoonful of salt and pepper mixed; roll the paste out thin, cut in strips, lay on a sheet of buttered paper and bake 10 minutes; let cool.

DEVILLED EGGS—Cover six eggs with warm water and boil 15 minutes; put in cold water and remove the shells; cut the eggs lengthwise; take out the yolks carefully and rub to a smooth paste with a teaspoonful of French mustard and 6 drops of salad oil; mix in a tablespoonful of minced ham, season with salt and pepper; fill the whites with the mixture.

BLACKBERRY PRESERVES—Pick ripe blackberries, weigh, allow a pound of sugar to a pound of fruit; sprinkle the sugar over and let stand over night; in the morning draw off the syrup, put in a kettle, and let boil; add the berries, and cook slowly until they are done and the syrup is thick.

One way to commit suicide is to eat canned lobster in hot weather.

People who always eat in a hurry suffer from indigestion at leisure.

To make fat pork brown nicely, dip the slices in sweet milk before frying.

FOR THE TOILET

There is no more useful or elegant article than Ayer's Hair Vigor—the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia O. Pitts-E. Pitts- writes: "I Ask For Ayer's have used Hair Vigor for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair."

Special Masters' Sale

United States of America, Northern District of Ohio.

The Central Trust Company of New York, Complainant, v The Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad Company and others, Defendants. Consolidated Cause. In the Circuit Courts of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western division, and for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, and for the Eastern District of Michigan, and for the Western District of Michigan, Southern Division. In equity.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 5, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, entered in the above entitled cause on July 1, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, entered in the above entitled cause on June 29, 1891, and of a decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Michigan, Southern Division, entered in the above entitled cause on June 30, 1891, we, Benjamin F. Wade and Hiram F. Carleton, the Special Masters designated by said decrees, will sell without appraisement, at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, in the United States Court room, in the City of Toledo, County of Lucas, and state of Ohio, at three o'clock, P. M. on the 6th day of October, 1891, the mortgaged premises and property mentioned in said decree, and described to be sold. The same will be sold in the manner and upon the terms hereinafter stated, viz.:

I. Said Special Masters will offer for sale separately and in consecutive parcels, the line of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company known as the Central Division, being the property described in the first mortgage of the Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company, dated April 14, 1881, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to such Division which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be determined by the court to be properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said mortgage. Said property will be offered for sale as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $1,500,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands, or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the court, the sum of $75,000 in cash, or first mortgage bonds of said Cincinnati, Van Wert & Michigan Railroad company to the amount of $100,000 of principal. Said Special Masters will offer for sale separately the property covered by and embraced in the consolidated mortgage of the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Railroad company, dated December 1, 1886, excluding the said Central Division above described, together with the proportion of equipment, material and supplies appertaining to the same which, upon the reference ordered in said decrees, shall be deemed by the court to properly belong to the same, and to be covered by said Consolidated Mortgage. Said property (excluding the Central Division) will be sold as an entirety, without appraisement or redemption. No bid will be accepted therefor from any bidder for a sum less than $1,000,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by the Special Masters, place in their hands or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the Court, the sum of $20,000 in cash, or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds to the amount of $250,000 of principal.

The said Special Masters will use their discretions in respect to which separate parcel shall be first offered for sale.

After having offered said properties for sale separately, as foresaid, said Special Masters will then offer the entire property covered by said Consolidated Mortgage, including said Central Division, for sale as one parcel, without appraisement or redemption, and if the highest bid received by them for the same shall exceed the aggregate amount of the several highest bids for the two parcels when offered separately, then the whole will be struck off and sold as one entirety to the person making such bid for the whole. No bid for said property as an entirety will be accepted from any bidder for a sum less than $1,500,000, nor from any bidder who shall not, if requested by said Special Masters, place in their hands or deposit with them, as a pledge that he will make good his bid, if accepted by the Court, the sum of $40,000 in cash, or Van Wert First Mortgage Bonds, or Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, or both, of the total par value of $350,000 of principal. The terms of purchasers at such sale may, if he or they so elect, be subrogated to the rights of Walston H. Brown, Receiver, under a certain agreement between said Receiver and the Haskell & Barker Car Company, dated January 18, 1890, for the purchase of equipment, upon assuming his liabilities under the same.

Of the price for which said properties shall be sold, there shall be paid in cash, at the time of the sale, a sum equal to the amount of cash deposit hereinbefore required, and also, at the same time, and from time to time thereafter, such further portions of said purchase price as the Court may direct, and the Court reserves the right to reject any bid, and to take and to sell said premises and property, upon failure of any purchaser for twenty days to comply with any order of the Court requiring payment. The balance of the purchase price not required to be paid in cash may either be paid in cash, or the purchaser may satisfy and make good said balance of his bid, in whole or in part, by paying over the outstanding First Mortgage Bonds and overdue coupons, or either, the outstanding Income Bonds, and the outstanding Consolidated Mortgage Bonds, and overdue coupons, or either, at such price or value as shall be equivalent to the amount that the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon, in case the entire purchase price were paid in cash. The foregoing provisions shall be applicable, whether the said properties be sold in separate parcels, or as a unit. If any bid shall be accepted by the court, and the purchaser make the same shall fail to comply with all the conditions of sale and all orders of the court with respect thereto, the sum deposited by the bidder shall be forfeited, and shall be applied as the court may direct.

Reference is hereby made to said decrees for a more specific description of the mortgaged property herein ordered to be sold, and for further particulars of the terms and conditions of sale. BENJAMIN F. WADE,

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

Gleaned Around Toledo by the Stroller.

Max Fehrmann and His Regular Business.

A Funny Thing Happens at the People's—The Stroller Sees Carmencita—Coming Attractions.

Quite a funny incident occurred during one of the performances of Uncle Isaac at the People's theater this week. A saying of Mr. Fehrmann, as Uncle Isaac, is "that's my regular business." He repeats it at every opportunity and it comes in quite pat at times, but never more so than on the occasion above referred to. Just in the midst of one of the most important scenes, Mr. Fehrmann glanced up and saw a large piece of scenery, one of the flats, falling to the stage. He did not let it interrupt the performance, but quietly caught it as it fell and placed it back in position, keeping on with his regular lines, and at the conclusion of the job stating "That's my regular business." It made quite a hit.

Uncle Isaac is improving every night. There is good material in the piece, and the company is bringing it out. Last evening's performance was all that could be desired. There was a large audience present, and the efforts of the company were thoroughly appreciated. The piece is sure to prove a success, as it is clean, bright and full of good points. The last performance of the present engagement will be given this evening.

Carmencita, the Spanish dancer, who created such a furore in New York, has left that city for a western tour, during which she will visit Toledo. A BEE happened to drop into Koster & Bial's on the occasion of Carmencita's last appearance in New York. The theater or concert hall, as it should more properly be called, although not very large or comfortable, was packed to suffocation. Carmenciti was to appear at about 10:15 o'clock. The performance commenced at 8 o'clock, but the elite of the metropolis did not arrive until late—just a few minutes before the time for Carmencita's act. They peeped at the fair dancer from the many heavily curtained boxes around the galleries, and jumped into their carriages and rolled home again as soon as her performance was over, as has been their custom during her engagement. Carmencita is a peculiar and most fascinating dancer. She does not do the conventional skirt dance or the Spanish dance as performed by other artists. She dances with her feet, body, arms, head and eyes, and her evolutions are indescribable. A gentleman inclined to be a little tipsy and over critical was sitting behind the BEE, and when the dancer had responded to at least ten encores, for the audience was loth to see her depart on her last appearance, he said: "Why, she don't dance; she just juggles her head and makes a muscular appeal to the audience." He may and may not have been correct, but whatever her charm Carmencita certainly caught New Yorkers and will capture Toledoans.

Toledoans will have an opportunity to witness something novel in the entertainment line, Monday evening, when Tuxedo will be presented at Wheeler's. Theater goers have seen all sorts of dramatic alliances, but this is the first time that minstrelsy and farce comedy has ever locked arms. The novelty of the thing would pack the house, even if it were not known that it was George Thatcher's minstrels and Rich & Harris' Comedy comedy that formed the combination. There are some good people with the company, among them Ed. Marbel, Hughey Dougherty, Raymond Moore, Lizzie Derious Dailey and Blanche Hayden.

The first act represents a party of society people at Tuxedo, a popular Eastern resort, endeavoring to arrange for a charity entertainment. They can't decide just what to present, and finally they are helped out of their dilemma by a friend, who states that he can get George Thatcher to bring his minstrel company, that is rehearsing over at Plainfield, N. J., to come over and give a dress rehearsal. In the second act the company arrives and gives a performance at the Tuxedo club house. There are three acts in the piece and rather a good plot. It will be a decidedly novel performance.

Miss Anna Belmont, of this city, who is with Sol Smith Russell, this season, opened in Duluth, Minn., this week in Mr Russell's new play, "Peaceful Valley. The piece is by the well-known author, Edward E. Kidder. It is said to be the best piece in which Mr. Russell has ever appeared and his interpretation of Hosea Howe, a green country boy who loves and woos a city belle, is a masterpiece.

Miss Belmont plays Niobe Farquhar, and the Duluth papers speak of her first performance in the highest terms. After the performance Mr. Russell and Mr. Kidder, the author, went to Miss Belmont and complimented her on her excellent acting and perfect conception of the part. Miss Belmont is a conscientious hard worker, and if there is a place at the top of the ladder she is bound to reach it for she is going steadily upward.

In Tuxedo George Thatcher makes his debut as a white-faced comedian. It is singular to note that the leading minstrel performers of a few seasons ago have wandered into white face business. Bob Slavin appears here in white face for the first time next week with May Russell, Barney Fagan and the inimitable Billy Rice are disporting themselves in the High Roller at the Bijou theater, New York; Carroll Johnson left minstrelsy and starred in the Fairies." Well. Frank McNish also went into musical comedy, Chauncy Olcutt, Harry Leighton and numerous others have wandered into opera and other branches of the dramatic profession.

The program of the May Russell Burlesque company, which will be presented at the People's theater next week, will be divided into three parts, opening with a musical burletta in which the entire company will appear, and closing with Frederic Solomon's burlesque, "Jack's Ante," introducing a number of lively specialties between the two. Among the new musical numbers to be introduced are, "The Italians," "Always Together," "The Minstrel Gavotte," "The American Boys in Blue," "McSweeney the Swell," "When Adam was a Boy," "Over and over Again," "He did it but he was foolish," and "The four gents from Yale." All new and original songs together with Mr. Solomon's new music which is exceptionally bright and catchy.

The Stroller's Property Box.

Goldie Burbank, of this city, has had several good offers to go on the stage next season.

May Russell's Burlesque company will appear at the People's next week with Bob Slavin on the program.

The Uncle Isaac company will play Cleveland next week. Their new costumes and scenery will reach there for the opening Monday.

A variety performance and farce by local artists will be given at the Presque Isle opera house during the Patriarch militants' encampment.

The ladies attending the People's theater next week will have a chance to see some very elaborate and costly dresses worn by Miss Batcheller, of the Russell company.

Uncle Tom's Cabin is soon to be presented in Toledo by a cast of well known ladies, who will also enact the male characters. No gentlemen will be allowed to witness the performance.

West, of the musical team of Montague and West in Uncle Isaac, is an old-time friend of Will S. Stackhouse, of this city, and still plays a number of songs composed by Mr. Stackhouse a number of years ago.

Max Fehrmann, who stars in Uncle Isaac, was educated for the ministry. Somehow or other he didn't like it, and taking advantage of his fine musical education became a director. From that by an easy process he drifted onto the stage.

The unicycles used by the Elliott family of bicyclists, who have been performing here this week with Stowe's circus, are made by the Gendron Iron Wheel company. These are the only wheels of the kind that the Elliotts can find that will stand the work.

Miss Kate Chesley, a young lady who appears in Uncle Isaac, and by her excellent acting appears to have had many seasons of thorough drilling, is fresh from a convent, where she was educated, and knew very little of the theater before her debut.

Who's here to-day and gone to-morrow,
One moment gay, then full of sorrow,
When saint's shy is on the borrow,
The Minstrel.

Who never left a thing undone,
If he had two dollars would give you one,
And is the best fellow under the sun,
The Minstrel.

Who when laid to eternal rest,
Never again on earth to jest.
We'll always say he was the best,
The Minstrel.

Anton W. Fischer, the Summit street music dealer, met an old acquaintance in the person of Max Fehrmann, who is playing here this week. Just 21 years ago when Mr. Fehrmann was a young man living in Ohio, Mr. Fischer played for him while he did the comedy part. They had not met since until this week.

Banana Peel on the Sidewalk.

The street car had passed but to catch it he reckoned,
So he ran like a deer and shouted and beckoned
Till he planted his heel
On a smooth bit of peel,
Then he saw half a million of stars in a second

He was in a great hurry; better to have waited for another car. There are cases, however, where haste is necessary. If you have night-sweats, feverishness, weak, sore lungs, and a hacking cough, do not lose an hour in obtaining a supply of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Delay in such cases is dangerous; it may be fatal. Before the disease has made too great progress, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a certain cure. In fact, it's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or money paid for it promptly refunded.

Archimedes' Famous Problem.

The problem which Archimedes proposed to the mathematicians of Alexandria is often referred to in historical works. Tradition says it was this: The sun had a herd of bulls and cows, all of which were either white, gray, dun or piebald. The number of piebald cows was less than the number of white bulls by 5 6 of the number of gray bulls; it was less than the number of gray bulls by 9-20 of the number of dun bulls, and it was less than the number of dun bulls by 13-42 of the number of white bulls; the number of white cows was 7-12 of the number of gray cattle (bulls and cows); the number of gray cows was 9 20 of the number of dun cattle; the number of dun cows was 11-20 of the number of piebald cattle, and the number of piebald cows 13-42 of the number of white cattle. What was the composition of the herd? Walter W. Rouse, in his "History of Mathematics," gives the solution on the lowest integers as follows: White bulls, 10,366,-842; gray bulls, 7,460,514; dun bulls, 7,-358,060; piebald bulls, 4,149,387; white cows, 7,200,300; gray cows, 4,868,246; dun cows, 3,545,820; piebald cows, 5,439,213. The classical solution attributed to Archimedes is exactly eighty times these numbers.

Port Grape Wine for the Sick.

"We can confidently recommend Speer's Port Grape Wine, a superior article of wine for the sick and debilitated.

The vineyards and cellars are at Passaic, N. J." Medical Review. No brandy is better than Speer's "Climax" of 1876.

AMONG THE METHODISTS.

Notes of Interest Anent the Conference and Other Matters.

Bishop Joyce will preach at Lakeside to-morrow.

A new church will be dedicated at Bradner to-morrow by Presiding Elder Pope.

Epworth League district convention will be held at Clark Street church, Wednesday, August 26.

Delegates to the lay convention will be elected by the fourth quarterly conference in the various charges.

Van Wert will likely claim the next meeting of the conference, as it was the only competitor Toledo had last year.

The Lakeside annual camp-meeting closes on the 19th inst. The meetings have been largely attended this year.

Already several applications have been received for quarters at the coming session of the Central Ohio conference at St. John's.

There have been two deaths among the pioneer preachers during the past year—Rev. H. E. Pilcher and Rev. John Poucher.

"Hunting a preacher" is the favorite pastime of official boards just now. That wasn't the style in our grandfather's days.

It is stated that Rev. C. R. Havighorst, now pastor at Bellefountaine, will go to New Mexico this fall to work among the Indians.

The attendance of President Bashford, of Delaware university, is expected during the session of the conference. He will deliver an address.

While Mr. Bethards is the only Toledo pastor who is compelled to move this year, it is whispered that several changes will be made.

A general awakening among the Methodist churches of the city is expected as a result of the meeting of the conference in September.

Revs. A. J. Fish and N. B. C. Love were the attraction at Island Park assembly, near Kendallville, Ind. Both belong to the C. O. conference.

Rev. J. L. Albritton, formerly pastor of St. John's charge, is at Jameson, Ky., with Mrs. Albritton, who is attending a sister who is seriously ill.

Much satisfaction is expressed that Bishop Newman will preach at Memorial hall on the Sunday of the conference. The bishop is an orator who will be worth hearing.

Bishop Andrews has consented to the transfer of Rev. T. L. Wiltsie to the Central Ohio conference. Mr. Wiltsie is now at Lakeside and will take an appointment at the September session in this city.

The Methodists of Toledo and others who will entertain visiting pastors should at once send their names to A. B. Hood, secretary of the general committee, 616 Adams street. A genuine welcome ought to be extended.

This week's issue of the Western Christian Advocate, printed at Cincinnati, contains an account of the dedication of the Monroe Street church, which occurred two weeks ago, written by the pastor, Rev. W. J. Miller.

"The Relation of the Presiding Elder to the General and Periodical Publishing Interests of the Church" is the title of the paper to be read by Rev. P. P. Pope, of this city, at the meeting of the elders' convention, at Greencastle, Ind., this fall.

The preachers who want to go to general conference at Omaha are putting themselves in the hands of their friends. Some great combinations are being formed, none of which are bothered about the old saw about "the best laid plans of men and mice aft gang aglee."

There are six presiding elders in charge of the districts in the Central Ohio conference, and all of them, it is understood, are willing to sacrifice themselves as delegates to the general conference to be held next May. As there are only four to be chosen, the hopes of two must necessarily be disappointed.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

A Hitch in the Milwaukee Deal.

It Is Certain to Go Through, However—Miscellaneous Gossip of the Diamond.

Milwaukee, Aug. 15.—(Special)—President Gillette returned from Louisville yesterday afternoon and about four o'clock received a telegram announcing that the offer of the Cincinnati franchise had been accepted and the local team was to have left for St. Louis last night to play the schedule game in place of Cincinnati today.

After Manager Cushman had taken his team to the depot and was purchasing tickets to St. Louis, a telegram was received ordering them not to come.

Columbus, or more properly, President Kramer had registered an objection to the admission of the Milwaukees notwithstanding that the consent of five clubs in the association had been obtained for the transfer of the city franchise.

The team was held but President Gillette boarded the train for St. Louis. Minneapolis had been notified of Milwaukee's withdrawal from the Western association and cannot reach the city for games to-day and to-morrow even if there was any desire to do so.

The aim of the American association in the disruption of the western league has been accomplished and the locals are in a perplexity as to whether or not they have played themselves out of the base ball entirely.

It is the opinion here that Kramer cannot prevail against the expressed wish of a majority of the association managers, but it is only an opinion and it is feared that the Milwaukees have been playing novices with veterans in the wild-cat business.

McCarthy to Fight.

New York, Aug. 15.—Cal McCarthy signed articles of agreement yesterday with the representative of the Rhode Island Athletic club to fight a 15-round glove contest with Billy Burns, of Providence, at 118 pounds. The mill will take place at Olneyville, R. I., September 4. The combatants are to receive 50 per cent. of the gate receipts.

The Eastern Association.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The magnates of the eastern association of base ball clubs met last evening at the Kenmore hotel and were in session until 4 o'clock this morning. The schedule as revised was submitted for the approval of the managers, but was not adopted owing to some objections being raised by the Syracuse manager. It will not be given out for publication until decided. It is generally known that the schedule up to September 1 has been approved, but there is considerable kicking being done on the games after that date. The members are again in session this morning.

Why Don't You Fight?

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—The numerous articles that have recently appeared in print over the signature of Jim Corbett and his challenge to the world published Thursday have caused considerable local comment unfavorable to Corbett. Peter Jackson was interviewed yesterday and said:

"I am ready to fight any time and in any place except New Orleans, and further will bet him $500 that he is not game enough to fight me again—or in other words finish the contest which he says he has already won. If he had me so badly beaten why does not he fight me again and settle beyond question who is the best man."

Will Fight To-night.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 15.—Harry Gilmore, the well known Chicago middle weight, and Jack Wilkes, of St. Louis, will have a finish fight at South Omaha to-night for a purse of $2,000, hung up by the Magic City Athletic club. Many prominent sporting men of Chicago, St. Louis and Denver are in the city to witness the fight. The rules require a knockout to entitle either man to the purse, and a savage fight is anticipated.

Boxing on the Coast

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 15.—The light weight boxing tournament of the California athletic club was held last night. The contestants boxed four rounds. Billy Casey, of San Francisco, 136½ pounds, beat John Jones, colored, of Portland, 136 pounds. Bob Baker, of Australia, 136½ pounds, knocked out Charlie Rochete, 135 pounds, in two rounds. Bob Kane, 136 pounds, defeated Ed. Rooney, same weight. Fred Cole, of Boston, was given the decision over Jack Ennis, of Boston. In the second bout Casey defeated Kane, and Baker, Cole. On August 28th the final bout for the first prize, $300, between Baker and Casey, will take place.

John Had to go Back.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Acting Secretary Nettleton has instructed the collector at New Orleans to send Cheng, alias Woo Lee a Chinaman, to San Francisco for deportation to China. Woo Lee arrived from Cuba on the "Hutchinson" and claimed to be a naturalized citizen, producing a certificate signed by witnesses. Evidence was produced that he was an impostor and was endeavoring to impersonate another Chinaman. The question of the liability of the steamer has been referred to the U. Settling the Strikes.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 15.—The plumbers' strike has been settled on a basis of proportionate pay for the hours of service given. It is admitted that the smelters' strike is practically settled, the company being willing to take back the men without a contract for over-time, because it is satisfied that the eight hour law is unconstitutional and will be so decided. There is a point of difference in the case of the leader of the strikers, James Bacon, who has been especially active and who the company does not want. The strikers ask that Bacon be taken back on probation.
